FISHER SHELL.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.

Bright eyes so sparkling,
Hair of chestnut brown,
Blushing little beauty,
Pride of all the town;
By the sea I met her,
Where the breakers rolled,
Told her how I loved her,
Tale so often told.

Plighted we our troth then,
Scarce sixteen were we;
I was strong and ruddy,
Brightly fair was she;
I was but a fisher' boy,
Whose cot stood by the sea,
She was an earl's fair daughter
And she gave her heart to me.

Years rolled by, we parted,
She to the gay old town
Where ladies grand and courtiers gay
Paraed horses up and down.
I to cross the ocean,
Through other lands to roam;
No one mourned the fisher boy
Who left his lonely home.

But still her image with me
I carried next my heart,
For did she not say, "Darling,
I love thee though we part?"
And many a storm I've weathered,
And many an ocean gale,
When the favored old mast would bend and break,
And tear the flapping sail.

At last I reached the city great
That held within my life,
To search my treasure, there I came
To claim her as my wife;
She'd gone upon a bridal tour,
They told me with great joy—
No word I said, but bowed my head,
God help the fisher boy. GUSSIE CRAYTON.

CHAPTER IX.

CHOCOLATE AT SIGNOR NERI'S.

Very different from the estimation in which Miss Pyecroft viewed herself and her belongings was the appreciation which the Signora had of herself in her fallen fortunes. Timid, shrinking from all notice, and living in a world of her own, of which her brother formed the centre round which she revolved, she looked back upon the past as on a gallery of lovely pictures, seen long ago in her childhood, whose beauty was so vividly impressed upon her that she should never forget it; yet it invested her present with no factitious importance, though there were jottings of palaces and courtly arrays among these memory sketches.

No one in Broadmead understood or cared about foreigners: it was an essentially uncosmopolitan place, knowing nothing of the great world-progress without, nor yet caring for it. Of Italians, its only experience had been itinerant organ-grinders, traveling through the country, for the most part, with monkeys. Consequently, poverty and music of some sort appeared to the population of Broadmead to be the natural birthright of foreigners; and that the Signor played upon one kind of organ, whilst his countrymen turned the handles of another, made no great difference in their eyes: organs, music, poverty, in the one case—organs, poverty, [illegible] above.

Perhaps [illegible] estimation of the Signor; still they were this village estimation of the Signor; still they were but modified. Refugee, in her eyes, as in Dr. Crawford's, was associated with words similar to rebel and reprobate, and which latter any word more deplorable in Broadmead, Signor Neri's politics, prejudices, whatever they might be—and, as the [illegible] did not come within the limits of the Pyecroft-pedigree relation to history, Miss Pyecroft had never inquired—were harmless; and he being down, and Miss Pyecroft dominant, she could afford, on certain occasions, such as the present, to be magnanimous. She was taking an unprecedented position. Everything was taking a trivial turn. But foreigners were so childish, and Diana was so undignified. Signor Neri was sorting out the music, and had taken no part in the conversation. Miss Pyecroft turned to him.

"I sent you an addition to the choir not long since, Signor Neri. I hope he is progressing satisfactorily. I have not been down to the Smiths lately, so I have not heard how Jim is getting on with his singing."

The Signor shrugged his shoulders.

"The intention was good, Madame, for which I give my best of thanks; but the poor Smith had not the ear for singing—neither the throat, nor chest, nor soul. Not one note could he attune.

"Of course not, for he had never been taught. I sent him to learn."

"But, Madame, it was impossible. He was as one organ without pipes—he had not voice, he could make no sound in harmony with the notes I struck. One tone alone had he. And though I sounded and sounded again each other, still did he keep firm, it could not vary, it was ever the same, do, do, do; and one might play sol fa mi, and the rest, for ever and ever, and ever, and still would it never change. It was like one great bee humming and humming changeless through all the song the nightingale might sing."

"Quite poetical, maestro," exclaimed Diana. "I believe you compose poetry as well as toccatas! Miss Pyecroft, it would be impossible for Jim Smith to sing in the choir; he has not a scrap of music in him."

"Scales bring out the voice," said Miss Pyecroft, didactically. "Besides, it would have kept him from the Methodists."

Signor Neri did not comprehend the force of the latter argument; but he was about to make a protest against the first part of the speech, when Jasper Seaton's step was heard on the narrow gravel path between the flower-borders.

The window of the sitting-room was open down to the grond; and Diana, darting through it, slipped her arm through Jasper's.

"What a time you have been," she said. "Miss Pyecroft is here, and you must talk to her whilst I am singing. "Stoop down," she continued, "I want to whisper something."

And Miss Pyecroft, from her distant corner of the room, peering through the window, became perplexed.

"That is more like an engagement," she said to herself. "Sophia and Letitia are always running away with some idea or another."

There was another step not far behind; and, as Jasper stooped to hear what Diana had to say, another hand was on the latch of the gate—and John Carteret stood hesitating as to whether he should go in or pass on.

There was a sore place in John Carteret's heart; the same sudden pain that had shot across it when Diana had first spoken about Jasper was there now. It had been called up on the previous day—for he had involuntarily witnessed the reconciliation between the guardian and his ward; for, meeting the rector at the door with the intelligence that John Amos was already dead, the two had followed not far behind Jasper and Diana. Dr. Crawford had glanced at his companion, and had noticed the flush that rose to his face die away, and a constrained look settle upon it.

"What a capricious being that girl is," said the rector, after a meditative silence. "Not much more than ten minutes since I should have [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

NOTICE.

☞ CORRESPONDENTS, advertisers, and all others writing in relation to matters connected with this or any other department of the CLIPPER, are respectfully requested to address their favors to the editor and proprietor, and thereby avoid omissions, mistakes and confusion which are likely to occur when such communications are addressed to our assistants.

NOTICE.

ADVERTISERS must hand in their favors before 6 o'clock on Monday evening, in order to have them appear in that week's issue.

To Correspondents.

UP AND DOWN.—1. Madden beat J. Walker, and Jones (twice); fought a draw with Grant, was beaten by Hayes, Ned Donnelly and Travers, and received forfeit from Mace twice. 2. Jim Coyne fought a draw with Harry Allen and was beaten by him. He never fought any one else. 3. Jemmy Welsh, of Birmingham, one of Sayers' favorite seconds, beat Smith, Brookes, Willday and Mallett; fought a draw with the latter, and was beaten by Massey, and received forfeit from Paddy Gill and Massey.

WILLIAM.—The principal colors are red, orange, yellow, green, blue, indigo and violet. White is not properly a color, as a white body reflects the rays of light without separating them. Black bodies, on the contrary, absorb all the rays, or nearly all, and therefore black is no distinct color. In common discourse, however, white and black are denominated colors, and all the colors admit of many shades of difference.

C. R.—1. Another player cannot build on your build of trays. 2. You are not compelled to take a trick when you can. 3. Usually 21. 4. He cannot go out on sweeps until his hand is played out. 5. A straight is usually played to beat two pair, but in some coteries it beats three of a kind. This point ought always to be agreed upon before commencing the game. 6. The Mutual nine this season will consist of C. Mills, Wolters, Start, Ferguson, Smith, Pierce, Hatfield, Eggler and Patterson.

CAPT. SMITH, New London, Conn.—Joe Coburn fought a draw with Ed. Price in 1858, 190 rounds, 3 hours and 20 minutes; beat Harry Gribbin in 1857, 21 rounds, 30 minutes; beat Mike McCoole in 1853, 67 rounds, 1 hour and 10 minutes. He has also had a number of turns-up, in none of which he was beaten, defeating Paisy Flynn, Alfred Mallen, Kelley, Con Fitzgerald and others.

CUSTOM HOUSE.—1. Max Irwin died in Adelaide, Australia, Aug. 9th, 1864. 2. The lady is married and has retired from the stage. 3. Some years ago a circus company pitched their tents and performed on the Battery in this city. 4. The Theatre Comique will seat more people than the Globe. 5. Mons. La Thorne is the best stage manager. 6. That is a private matter.

SUPERVISOR, Brooklyn, L. I.—1. We do not answer questions concerning the private affairs of professionals. 2. The ladies who performed in "Our American Cousin," at Ford's Theatre, Washington, D. C., April 14th, 1865, were Miss Laura Keene, who played Florence Trenchard; Miss Jean Gourlay as Mary Meredith, and the late Mrs. Muzzy as Lady Mountchessington.

STAKEHOLDER, Detroit.—Persons entering into business partnerships specify on the agreement, or deed of partnership, what the ratio of the firm shall be. The person having the largest monetary interest usually takes precedence, but if the capabilities and interests of the parties are equal, the senior partner's name ought to be first.

J. B. A., Petroleum Centre.—The shove shot cannot be played, except by mutual agreement. The rule of American billiards permitting the shove shot was expunged nearly four years ago. There is now no rule either for or against it, but by the universal rule, the custom among the better and major portion of players governs, and that custom is not to play the push.

WILLIAMS, Chicago, Ill.—The election returns in the city of New York in 1870 were, for the democratic ticket—Hoffman, 60,968; Beach, 58,932; Nichols, 57,407; republican ticket, 34,391; Kaufman, 34,290; Palmer, 34,414; for the office of Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Controller, respectively. From these figures you can make your own calculations.

CARVER'S HARBOR.—As A did not rob, as he ought to have done, he should have laid down his hand; the others then should have played theirs out, and each have taken what they made, in our opinion. There is no fixed rule by which the point at issue can be decided, however.

THE OTHER PIECE OF COMPANY.—You would be very foolish to leave your present situation for the uncertainty of embarking in the theatrical business, which is now overcrowded, and which would find it exceedingly difficult to get an opportunity to make a public appearance.

SUB. BOONEY, McPherson Station, Neb.—General Zachary Taylor was elected President of the United States in the fall of 1848, inaugurated in March, 1849, and died suddenly on July 9th, 1850; consequently he lived 16 months after inauguration.

CALIFORNIA.—Owney Geoghegan did not bar Billy Dwyer in his challenge; it was entirely an oversight that his name was omitted, as he especially desired it mentioned. If Dwyer accepts, he can get on.

G. H. L., Boston, Mass.—1. The Ward Brothers were the last possessors of that title in the States. Their best time for six miles was 39:28, against the Morris crew, of St. John, N. B., in 1867. 2. Brown is best entitled to the position now.

WARY BARBOUR.—At cribbage, A plays a 4, B a 5, A a 5, taking five points for fifteen and sequence, B a 7, taking four for sequence, when A plays another 4, claiming another sequence for four. Is he right?.....Yes.

JOHNSON, Brooklyn.—1. The shortest time in which one mile has been run at one start is 4:03, partly down hill, by Bill Lang, at Newmarket, Eng. 2. It was Bill Richards who ran a dead heat with Lang in 4:17¾, the fastest time on level ground.

T. J. S., Mansfield, Texas.—In match not over a player the right to "assist" his partner, then discard his partner's assistance and go alone. The player must determine in his regular turn what he intends to do. We do not answer correspondents by mail.

W. P., New York City.—If the dealer passed once, after all the other players had passed, it is a double header; but if the dealer bet on the first round, the third player, who had previously passed, can come in and bet.

T. E. W., Pembroke.—If the two highest throwers were entitled to the first and second prizes, then the five throwers who tied on the highest throw must throw off, the highest taking the first prize and the next highest the second prize.

PHILADELPHIA.—Charles R. Thorne, Jr., at present performing at the New Chestnut Street Theatre, in "Our Cousin," is the son of Mr. R. Thorne who recently took his farewell of the stage in San Francisco, Cal.

J. H. C., Allegheny City.—1. There never was a full grown black and tan dog that weighed less than nine ounces, blights excluded. The smallest we ever saw weighed close on 2lbs., although we have heard of one that only weighed 1½lbs. 2. High deals.

HARRY, Chicago.—There are no recognized rules governing the game of euchre, which is an innovation on the regular game. Those who play it must make their own rules before commencing.

REED CROOK.—The "Black Crook," upon its first representation, was produced Wednesday, Sept. 12th, 1866; it was withdrawn after the performance of Saturday, Jan. 4th, 1868, and was played 474 times.

RANDOLPH OF.—M'lle Bonfanti, now dancing in the "Black Crook" at Niblo's Garden, in this city, is the same person who danced in that spectacle on its original production. There is only one premiere danseuse of that name in this country.

DICK, Boston.—1. We have no personal knowledge of any one in that line in Boston to whom we could recommend you. 2. You should enlist the services of a good professional before venturing upon the stage.

PUGILIST.—We learn that Seddons' backer did not pay forfeit to Barney Aaron's representative when money was put up for a match between them some weeks ago; the money was drawn by mutual consent.

R. B.—A letter from Cleveland states that Huebel signed a contract with the Forest City Club, of Cleveland, last fall. How is this?

JACOB MILLER.—If you write to Mr. Jas. McConnell, one of the directors of the Mutual Club, address Tax Office, Chambers street, N. Y., he will give you the information, which we cannot.

J. C. H., Paducah, Ky.—1. If, in euchre, a man plays alone and gets euchred, his adversary is entitled to two points. 2. The player on the left of the dealer leads.

G. H. W., Boston.—1. We have no means of obtaining the information desired. 2. There is no game out, and the acquiescence of all the players is necessary before such action is taken.

GROTH, Phila.—The two persons who threw 46 were entitled to the two prizes, providing they agreed to throw off; if not, then the man who threw 43 wins the second prize.

BURT, Boston.—At cribbage, the cards having been played in the following order—4, 10, 4, 1, 3, 5, 2—the player of the deuce was entitled to five points for a sequence.

L. D. B., Boston.—It depends very much upon the person desiring to purchase. They ought to realize $10 per volume. The better plan to dispose of them is to advertise in the CLIPPER.

D. J. O'L.—1. A person betting on a sure thing wins, provided no fraud has been used to induce the opposite party to make the wager. 2. We do not know you the name of the party.

ALPHA.—1. If A took the responsibility of the trump, and played alone, D could not go alone against him. 2. If the latter took three tricks, A is euchered, and D scores two points.

CARD, Troy.—1. The straight with king, queen, jack, etc., beats that with ace, deuce, tray, etc. 2. Hearts. 3. No. 4. Very poor.

AMATEUR, Petroleum Centre.—The player was entitled to a strike for safety, and always is when he "fouls" without having touched the cue ball.

PATRONS.—Barnum's Museum, at the corner of Broadway and Ann street, was burned July 13th, 1865. The one on Broadway near Spring street was burned March 24, 1868.

A SUBSCRIBER, Silver City, Idaho.—Soochow, China, which has a population of over two millions, is said to be the second largest city in the world.

CONSTANT READER, Hamilton.—Jim Mace has defeated every man with whom he has fought, although he has not won every battle.

M. J.—Unless the dealer, A, saw C straddle, he has no claim to the pot, which belongs to C. If he did see the straddle, the age belongs to C, and A must bet first.

DOG FANCIER.—A standard work on the subject is "Dinks, Mayhew & Hutchinson on the Dog," price $3. You can obtain it through Ed. James, whose advertisement see in another column.

WM. R.—Harrisburg, Pa.—Never having been in that city for more than a few minutes, we could not have been in the party you refer to. Some one has imposed on you, evidently.

KNICKERBOCKER, San Francisco.—Dark blue pants, same color cap and broad striped shirt of dark blue stripes. Mr. Hinsdale, of the Knickerbockers, will send you a special description.

SPORT BURR.—In estimating the best average of outs and runs, the best average of runs gives the lead. J. H. has the best average.

SECRETARY, Chicago.—The professional club meeting, or convention, rather, will be held on March 17th, in this city, at 840 Broadway, corner of Thirteenth street.

J. F. E., South Hadley.—Write to John Chapman, care of this office. The Atlantics want a player such as you describe; or you can write to the Secretary of the Rockford Club.

ST. LOUIS.—Mr. Fowler, late Postmaster, did return to this city subsequently to his defalcation and flight. We believe he died here.

E. M., San Francisco.—The quickest passage from New York to Queenstown was made by the Inman steamer City of Brussels, viz.:—7 days, 20 hours and 10 minutes.

W. H. W., Enfield, Mass.—Gonzalez was hung, the other man turning state's evidence. The execution took place in Brooklyn. Fricey was hung at the Tombs, this city.

H. W. E.—A party betting on a sure thing or certainty, wins, provided he has used no fraud or misrepresentation to induce the making of the bet.

C. A. S., Tucson, A. T.—The lex loci, or rules of the place, govern the game. Mr. T. ought to have enquired what the rules were before commencing to play.

J. J. C.—The lady claimed that they were legally married—we are not aware that he obtained a divorce. 2. She did. 3. We prefer not to give her proper name; it is by no means attractive.

OSO. K. H., Shamokin, Pa.—1. It is a usual, but not the same as though the hand had been dealt to another player. 2. You cannot go alone if your partner assists.

J. B., Elizabeth, Pa.—1. The place has not yet been selected; it is not likely that they will fight at the spot you mention. 2. It was his first fight.

TOM, Chicago.—B's three queens win. Three cards do not constitute a Sual.

R. Y. C., Omaha.—Five sixes is the highest that can be thrown at poker dice.

JUNCTION CITY, Kansas.—A cannot recede from his own proposition to bunch the cards after B accepts it.

99 NORTH MAIN ST., Chicago.—The Great Eastern first arrived in New York, June 27th, 1860.

J. H. O. W.—He may be addressed at Cincinnati, O. He is still in the circus business.

WM. LANES, Salem, Mass.—"The Rogue's Lexicon," price $1.25, can be had of Ed. James, whose advertisement is in another column.

GEO. A. E., Cambridge, Mass.—Bouciault spells his name without an e.

"ADELA."—We have never sent any except on business connected with the office.

OSCEOLA, Syracuse.—We do not need a traveling correspondent. Thanks for your offer all the same.

WOLF, Buffalo.—1. Some of our advertisers can send you a picture of the lady. 2. Care of CLIPPER office, New York.

SUNSHINE, Grand Rapids, Mich.—They cannot be obtained in this city.

HELENA.—Cincinnati is accredited with having the most efficient fire department in this country.

D. B., Richmond.—Collyer weighed 123¼ lbs., and Edwards 120½ lbs. in their last fight.

S. B., Buffalo.—The Jack of clubs beats the ace of clubs, when not trumps, at forty-five.

KIT.—Remittance received. We should be pleased to look over a specimen article.

EMIL M. H., Philadelphia.—We cannot inform you of his whereabouts.

W. P.—1. Joe Coburn was born July 20th, 1835. 2. Abe Hicken arrived at New York from England on his first visit—Oct. 21st, 1867.

J. H., Brooklyn, Mass.—Robert Craig was never a member of any stock company at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, Mass.

FLORIDUS UNUS, Philadelphia, Pa.—1. There is no regular theatre in Vincennes, Ind. 2. No.

MONUMENTAL, Baltimore, Md.—Miss Lotta was born in Grand street, New York city, and is at present playing in Philadelphia, Pa.

H. M. W., Fort Scott, Kansas.—It has never been definitely settled who is the champion of bond playing first visit.

OLD SUBSCRIBER.—Gymnasts command from $25 to $150 per week. Please you mention get the latter amount.

T. W., Lenox Furnace.—Jim Mace and Bob Brettle fought twice, the latter winning the first battle and Mace the second.

J. H. B., Newport, R. I.—The population of North and South Carolina is greater than that of France.

CARTER, Wacoo.—Our terms for amusement advertisements are 15 cents line for each insertion, agate measurement. Theatre, two lines agate, $1 per week and other bona fide advertisements, two lines agate, $1 per week. Circular at other comps.

R. S., Louisville, Ky.—Miss Bonta Denin is in Rhode Island, she has been playing colonial engagements in the provincial cities.

C. W. H., Syracuse, N. Y.—Your second reliable items will be accepted.

BILL'S EYE, Newark.—C is lower than B, but beats A, who in turn beats B.

R. A. M., Buffalo.—B, having scored 36 points to A's 22, wins the game.

PUSS HAYNES.—Washington, D. C., is in, or is a part of the United States.

OLD READER, Chicago, Ill.—If you have reference to the tournament for the present one, then John Deery is the man.

UNCLE TOM, Philadelphia.—The Eighish snipe usually lays four, and sometimes five eggs, of a greenish hue, with brown spots.

SUBSCRIBER, Elkton, Md.—A player cannot go alone after a partner has assisted.

H. H. W., Cleveland.—Some of our advertisers may be able to accommodate you.

J. McK., Memphis, Tenn.—See answer to Subscriber, Elkton. We do not answer questions by mail.

C. H. K.—Your question involves so much file hunting that you will have to wait a reply.

B. B., Brooklyn.—By all accounts it appears that Edwards had the best of it.

HIGH STREET, Baltimore.—A could not play it alone; his three tricks, which euchered B, counts A two points only.

ALBANY.—The Great Eastern was launched on the 31st of January, 1858.

JUSTICE, Elkhart, Ind.—The dice must be thrown face up, or it is no throw. We do not answer questions by mail.

CONSTANT READER.—Lew Baker, Charles Lozier and Jim Turner, were shot during the affray in which Poole was killed.

SPORTING HOUSE, Hoboken, N. J.—Write to or call upon Ed. James, 88 and 90 Centre street, this city.

JAS. F. J., Cincinnati.—Write to the Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

F. B., St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs. D. P. Bowers is the better actress of the two, and so the public considers.

READER, Louisville, Ky.—A player can build two piles separately.

DIXIE, Albany, Ga.—We shall always be glad to receive such items.

JACK OF ALL GAMES.—Low, Jack goes out before high, game.

F. W., Syracuse, N. Y.—We had already made arrangements.

PUD STYLE, Leavenworth, Kansas.—It is certainly unique.

"REFORMED."—It will appear, probably, in our next issue.

SPROUT, Toronto, Ont.—Mace is the heavier of the two.

S. W. PEARSON, Troy.—They will appear in the book.

J. H. D.—We have more than we can find room for.

H. H. N., Boston.—We have some back numbers.

DAN SHELBY.—One dollar and sixty-five cents.

O. H.—Both having shown 16 each, it is a tie.

ALBION.—No; Mace never fought Sayers.

O. D. USS.—Accepted. See elsewhere.

PATTERSON.—He is 5ft. 5¼ in. in height.

BUNKUMTO.—Respectfully declined.

W. E. M., Baltimore.—Accepted.

ALF. BURNETT.—Cash received.

CONSIDERING THE LENTEN SEASON the theatres and halls of amusement are doing moderately well, and managers are not suffering. Dramatic agencies, of which we have several in this city, are dividing the honors between them, each establishment having a fair circle of friends and patrons, as may be seen by their respective cards in the CLIPPER's advertising columns. Their busiest time will commence about June, when managers and performers visit the metropolis to make arrangements for the ensuing season.

NOW THAT sleighing and skating have about thawed out, base ball is once more looking up, and the season promises to be one of extraordinary interest, as the rivalry existing between our various professional clubs will be very exciting. The contests in which the Mutuals, Chicago, Boston, Olympic, Athletic and Haymakers are to engage will no doubt be witnessed by unusually large assemblages; especially will this be the case in the first meeting between the Chicago and Mutual Clubs.

THE TICKETS FOR THE MOYAMENSING BALL, in Philadelphia, are out, and a beautiful specimen of colored printing do they exhibit. This ball is to Philadelphia what the Americus Ball is to New York, and it annually draws together a vast assemblage of the friends of the Moyamensing. The affair is to take place, as we announced in our last, at the Academy of Music, on Easter Monday, April 10th. We return our thanks to the managers for an invitation to join in the festivities.

COBURN AND MACE have decided their "passage at arms" till May, as may be seen by reference to another part of this issue of the CLIPPER. Canada, being neu ral ground, has been selected as the trysting place. Both men are taking good care of themselves, and are already presenting an improved appearance. Their respective quarters are visited by large numbers of those who take an interest in the "squaring of the circle."

GREAT MEN.—We are constantly learning something about great men. An exchange says:—"What first made the French statesman, M. Thiers, popular, was his ability as a public speaker. He could so move an audience by his eloquence, as to cause them to weep copiously at his pleasure." From all of which we infer that, being able to move the people to tears, was what first drew Thiers to the people.

WHAT AN UNFORTUNATE THING it is for the daily papers that the French and Prussian war is over. Having reveled in human gore for seven months, our city murders will prove but tame affairs, and yet such matters must sumce for the daily paputism of their well drained and blood-thirsty readers.

BY PIGEON EXPRESS from Europe we learn that a man recently climbed Vesuvius and threw himself into the burning cratur. An Irish friend of ours says that the man must have had considerable of the cruthur in him before he went into the cratur.

OUR COLLECTOR.—Strenuous efforts are being made to remove Mr. Murphy from the Collectorship. We don't know much about the man except that as an officer of the custom house we have always heard him spoken of as being very attentive to duty.

POLITICIANS are still exercising themselves over the St. Domingo question, some favoring the acquisition of the island, while others think that to annex it would not be an-nex-cellent measure. We pass.

"KENO."—This "little game" is attracting much attention in New York at present, and the people are going for it in the most lively manner imaginable. The only question is, will it not soon play itself out?

SOMEBODY SAYS, that "if Gen. Butler were to lead a contingent to Ireland he might find it difficult to return." That, we suppose, would be contingent upon the success or failure of the expedition.

THE GERMANS are making a great noise over the news of peace, and while war brought many a Prussian to his bier on French soil, peace will bring still more to their beer on American grounds.

OUR PORTRAIT GALLERY.

MATT. H. HEWINS, THE CONNECTICUT BILLIARD CHAMPION.

Few names are better known in the broad field of legitimate sport than that of "Mattie Hewins," whose portrait this week graces our initial page, and no man in the profession of billiards is more highly esteemed by his confreres, or a greater favorite with amateurs than this same "Mattie Hewins," to whose enterprise and liberality is mainly due the tournament for the championship of New England, just brought to a successful close at Hartford, of which city he is a native, and likewise a resident. Beginning life with even fewer advantages than fall to the lot of most boys, he has worked his way gradually upward, until to-day, besides being the trusted agent of the largest billiard goods house extant, he is proprietor of, perhaps, the best paying billiard room in the New England states. Born in March, 1843, no other billiard player of his age has achieved the success in business that has awarded his efforts, and that unexampled success is not a whit more than his unexampled industry has merited. A skilful billiard player himself, he is yet known less as a player than as a patron of players, and an advocate of every conceivable measure calculated to further the artistic development of the "noble game," and at the same time perpetuate it in its existing status as one of the most prominent of standard pastimes. As a match player he has figured in about twenty-four public contests, mainly for the championship of Connecticut and the championship of New England. Outside of these events he has played six matches with Ralph Benjamin, one with L. W. Simonds, and one with George Stone. We first hear of him as a participant in the original tournament for the championship of Connecticut, held at Allyn Hall, Hartford, Aug. 16th to 18th, 1864, Gershom B. Hubbell winning first prize and Hewins second. On March 8th of the following year he played Ralph Benjamin for $100, losing by 164 in 1,000, after receiving odds of 100. A return game played March 19th Hewins won by 111. Nov. 14th to 17th, in the second tournament for the Connecticut championship, he again carried off second prize, Mr. Wollahan securing the cue. Shortly afterwards Hewins won the championship of Wollahan and was challenged by Benjamin, whom he defeated by a score of 1,000 to 926. Since then Hewins has remained in undisputed possession of the championship, no one in the state having ventured to challenge him. At Music Hall, New Haven, March 4th, 1868, L. W. Simonds undertook to give him 500 in 1,500, for $500 a side, and was beaten by 485. In Meriden, Aug. 21st, 1869, Hewins played Philip Benjamin the three ball game for $100 a side, and won by a score of 150 to 136. A return game, in which Hewins scored 150 and Benjamin claimed to have scored the same number, was, upon arbitration, awarded the latter; and then followed a deciding game, which Benjamin won by 150 to 132. The last formal match played by Hewins was with George Stone, at the three ball game, for $300 a side, Jan. 4th, 1870. Stone giving the odds of 60 in 300. Stone won by 33. Taking part in the New England tournament of last week, Hewins was beaten by Foster and Stone, and in turn defeated Wilson, Dennison and Bowen. Courteous and yet independent, resolute without being exacting, a marked characteristic of the subject of our sketch is the deference he uniformly pays to the opinions and preferences of those with whom he comes in contact, while at the same time he is firm of purpose in all those matters concerning himself chiefly.

THE DRAUGHT CHAMPION OF LOUISIANA.—A match at draughts for the champion challenge board of Louisiana offered by the ladies of Shreveport, was played on Feb. 23d, between Wm. Reymond, of Baton Rouge, and Percy S. Pierson, of Nachitoches. The game excited considerable interest and betting was 2 to 1 on the Nachitoches man, he being long known as an expert. Both played with great caution, but the Baton Rouge man made a false movement and the game was decided against him.

PASSAIC CRICKET CLUB.—At a meeting of this Paterson, N. J. club, held on Thursday, 2d inst., the following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:—President, E. Barton; Vice President, G. Taylor, Jr.; Secretary, A. Tooth; Treasurer, W. Granger: Corresponding Secretary, E. Juber.

A QUICK TRIP from Foo Chow, China, to New York, was completed on the 3d inst., in eighty-six days, by the ship Caliph, Captain Ritson. This has been beaten, however, by the ship Surprise, in eighty-three days, twelve hours.

Squibs and Things.

—"In Germany the opera begins at six in the evening and is the fashion for young ladies to attend without escort. The best performance of the season is generally given in the afternoon, and grandmothers and children enjoy the performances together.

—In 1800 there were but four houses at Absecom Island; in 1860 it was incorporated as Atlantic City, and it now has 12 hotels, boarding houses, cottages and 175 other buildings, with 2,345 residents and many visitors.

—Suit was recently begun in a Wisconsin county court for the amount of a bill, of which the following was one of the items:—"To cutting a corn in my ball and dancing thereto, $10." We are in favor of the bill, for dancing was in the ball or the bole.

AQUATICS.

THE LATE WALTER BROWN.

DEATH OF WALTER BROWN.

With deep regret we announce the demise of the celebrated oarsman whose name appears in the caption of this article, the sorrowful event having occurred at the residence of his mother, at Newburgh, N. Y., on Friday, March 3d. His sickness, it is said, was brought on by exposure and overwork, and was contracted during the destruction of his boat-house, on the Charles river, Boston, a few weeks ago.

THE RING.

THE MACE AND COBURN MATCH.

Since the announcement was made that the second and final deposit in the match between Mace and Coburn had been duly posted and all other preliminary matters satisfactorily adjusted, there has been an evident deepening of the interest manifested therein, thus evincing public confidence in the good intentions of the principals. It has had the effect, too, of silencing those who had sought to impugn the motives of one or other of them and who confidently predicted that, through the occurrence of some hitch or other at the time appointed for making good the total amount of the stakes, the match would then be abruptly broken off. Being thoroughly conversant with the circumstances leading to the making of the match, we have from the commencement reposed the most implicit confidence in the firm determination of both men to carry it through to a consummation within the roped circle; and so far everything has tended to demonstrate the correctness of our opinion and to refute the assertions of those whom prejudice has caused to express a contrary belief. The postponement of the date originally agreed upon for the day of battle will, of course, occasion a similar change in the period of entering upon strict training by the principals, who have each done just sufficient work the past week to prevent the accumulation of flesh, and take off a few ounces from that already encumbering their athletic frames. Each has received and entertained numerous friends at their respective houses, and had their health, and success toasted time and again by enthusiastic admirers. Mace will be at Albany this week, having accepted an engagement to appear as Charles, the Wrestler, in "As You Like It," in company with Mrs. Scott Siddons and Walter Montgomery, at the Trimble Opera House, opening on the evening of March 6th. The stakes, two thousand dollars, were transferred to the gentleman chosen final stakeholder, Harry Hill, on the 2d inst., in accordance with the stipulations contained in the articles of agreement. Coburn is to appear at Dramatic Hall, (Burnham's old gymnasium) 79 Livingston street, next to the new Court House, Brooklyn, on Saturday evening, March 11th, the entertainment embracing sparring, singing, dancing, negro-isms, etc. The sets-to will be between Coburn and Bill Clark, Johnny Dwyer and Luke Welsh, Mike Coburn and Johnny Saunders, and others equally well known.

EDWARDS vs. COLLINS.

BILLY WILL FIGHT TIM FOR $1,000 A SIDE,

MITHER AT 124 LBS. OR CATCH WEIGHT.

At different times during the past twelve months or so there has been considerable talk regarding a proposed match between Billy Edwards, the light weight champion, and Tim Collins, but up to the present nothing in a business way has been done towards effecting it, something always transpiring to cause the subject to be dropped. Of late it has broken out afresh, the friends of Tim talking particularly loud and fast, and several challenges have appeared in daily journals over his signature, but whether by his authority or not we cannot say. All this has had the effect of stirring Billy into action, and with a view to finding out whether Collins means what he says, and has friends who will back him, he desires us to publish the subjoined card, the terms of which are certainly such as Tim can find no reasonable excuse for refusing to agree to if he really wants to test Edwards' mettle on the turf. As there seems little probability of a match being effected between Billy and Sam Collyer, the former's friends hope that Collins and those of his friends who have so loudly proclaimed his ability to "lay out" the light haired youth in short order will come to time and be ready with the shekels on Monday next. Read the card:—

NEW YORK, March 6th, 1871.

FRANK QUEEN.—DEAR SIR.—I have recently had my attention called to several challenges, published in daily papers of this city, purporting to come from Tim Collins and being directed to me. Whether he was the author of said challenges or not I do not know, but if he intended to get a match and not simply newspaper notoriety, he should have sent the challenge to your office and accompanied it with forfeit money to show that business was meant. He and some of his admirers have been blowing his trumpet very loudly of late, but I don't see any money up to show that there's anything but gasconade in it. However, to find out exactly what their object is, I hereby offer to fight Tim Collins for $1,000 a side, at either catch-weight or 124 lbs., weighing either the day before or on the morning of the battle to take place in the same ring in which Mace and Coburn fight. If this suits him (and I don't see how he can object to these conditions if he is in earnest), I will meet him at the CLIPPER office on Monday afternoon, March 13th, at 5 o'clock, to make the match, draw articles and deposit one-half of the stake-money, $500. Hoping that he will be there to meet me and put up this time, I remain, yours respectfully,

BILLY EDWARDS, Light-Weight Champion.

JOHNNY LAZARUS has been tendered a benefit, which will take place at Shakespeare Hall, late McDonough's, Nos. 724 and 726 South Sixth street, Philadelphia, on Thursday evening, March 16th. One of the principal attractions will be a meeting with the gloves between Billy McLean and Jim Murray, who fought with the naked fists some months agone. The wind up will introduce Lazarus and Bob Porter.

EDWARDS AND COLLYER.—No reply has yet been made by Sam Collyer to the challenge which appeared in the CLIPPER of last week from his quondam opponent, Billy Edwards.

WE HAVE LETTERS for John C. Heenan (3), Wm. Varley, Col. T. H. Monstery, John W. Cozad, Joe Coburn and Jack Goulding.

JERRY DONNOVAN, late of Philadelphia, is now located at 308 Pennsylvania avenue, Scranton, Pa.

"RED HANDED MIKE" will find a letter for him in the Duluth, Minn., P. O.

DICK HOLLYWOOD was to take a benefit at the Exchange Theatre, Indianapolis, Ind., on the evening of March 6th.

SKATING.

A QUESTION OF VERACITY.—We call attention to the following rejoinder to the card from Prof. Abner S. Brady, in the CLIPPER of last week:—

NEW YORK, March 3, '71.

ED. N. Y. CLIPPER.—DEAR SIR.—Having noticed an article in your issue of March 4th from Mr. Brady, of the Jersey City Rink, contradicting Mr. Fisher's letter, we, the undersigned, do hereby testify to the latter's accuracy in every point, and assert that at the opening of the match Mr. B. intended to have the entire surface of the ice reserved for the same, but on representation of some of our members a portion was rented off, and during the progress of the match this barrier was removed, under instructions and by order of Mr. B. to his boys in attendance, when the ice reserved for the match skaters became over-run with the audience; and upon Mr. Engler's and Mr. Fisher's earnest desire to have the match continue, we, the undersigned representatives of the Empire City Club, formed a line and cleared the rink to the extent of the space reserved, replacing the barrier and keeping it there until the conclusion of the match. Very respectfully yours, (Signed) S. MARTIN, Judge for E. H. Fisher.

E. M. KUNHARDT, Recording Secretary.

T. WILLIAMS,	J. LAWTON,	H. HILLS,
GEO. MARTIN,	E. MILES,	J. FARR,
HARR. HILLS,	JOE CLARK,	WM. ROGERS.
MAX HIRD,	CHAS. FITZ,	J. NOAKES.

A MASQUERADE SKATING CARNIVAL took place at San Francisco, Cal., on February 21st, in which about a hundred couples entertained about 2,000 spectators by their movements in various colored costumes, led by Professor Lovett. After a half hour devoted to the grand march the bell was rung to "skate at will" for another half hour, and then fifteen minutes were devoted to exhibitions of fancy skating. An interval of comic skating by "growing giants" was rather tame, because of the difficulty in keeping time to the music either with the feet or heads. Their exit with their heads thrust under their legs caused a hearty laugh. About 12 o'clock, the Committee to award the prizes, Messrs. Smiley and Livermore, assisted by four ladies, made their report that the gentleman's prize should be given to the Irish character, Mr. Gould, and the prize for ladies to the Tambourine Girl, Miss Esten. One gentleman assumed six disguises—distinct characters—but he failed to make an impression on the Committee, who were governed by the rule saying the prize should be awarded for the "best sustained character."

FISHER VS. DOLLARD.—Below appears an explanatory card from E. H. Fisher concerning his match with Dollard:—

NEW YORK, March 5th, 1871.

EDITOR CLIPPER.—DEAR SIR.—Seeing an article in your last edition, in relation to my match with Mr. Dollard, I write to give you a little information upon the subject. Mr. Dollard and I agreed to skate a match at the Brooklyn Rink, the winner to receive a gold medal; the loser a portion of the receipts (not $25). After a little correspondence with Mr. D. about the match, I again called on the manager of the Brooklyn Rink, who informed me that he had been told the match was off and he did not feel inclined to renew the agreement, but would put up a medal if we wished to skate. This I refused to do, as it would cost me a trifle more to beat Mr. Dollard and would hurt me a great deal if I lost. As to whether I am a professional skater or not, I have only to say that I have given exhibitions on both ice and roller skates, some with Frank Swift and Chas. Smith, one of the champion roller skaters of America, all of which were for money not honor, and now have two engagements on hand which I shall not be able to fill till next winter. Respectfully yours,

E. H. FISHER,
Champion skater of New York.

CLOSE OF THE SEASON.—The skating season of 1870 and '71 terminated the last day of February, the last day's skating, as was the first day, of the season, being had at the Brooklyn Rink, the last carnival of the season occurring on Feb. 28th. Although on March 4th there was ice on the rink to allow of two or three skaters to have a private trial, the rink closed its season as stated, having had forty days of excellent skating.....The Capitoline Pond was closed the same week, there having been over 30 days skating at this resort.....Not a single skating match was had in Brooklyn during the entire season, and but one in the metropolis and vicinity, viz., that between Engler and Fisher at the Jersey City Rink.....The best display of professional skating seen during the season was that given by Capt. John Minor at the Brooklyn Rink, Messrs. Brady and Dollard bearing off the palm in amateur displays.....The principal event of the season was the meeting of the American Skating Congress, and among the gala occasions the carnivals of the New York and Empire City clubs were noteworthy.

SKATING IN MICHIGAN.—A correspondent, writing from Grand Rapids, Mich., says:—"The capacity of the rink was fully tested on Feb. 27th, and the audience was the most fashionable ever witnessed since it was opened to the public. The beautiful of the art skatorial was never more gracefully exhibited than on this occasion, not only by Miss Carrie A. Moore, the star of the evening, but also by Miss Mary Young, the acknowledged queen of our home amateurs. As on Saturday evening, Miss Moore exhibited several new and exceedingly difficult movements, evincing great skill, grace and endurance. The event of the evening was the velocipede act, in riding which Miss Moore has gained considerable celebrity. The dual skating with Miss Young, where both ladies performed several intricate and graceful figures, was received with great applause."

CALLIE CURRIE AND FRANK SWIFT appeared at the Hartford, Conn., Skating Rink on the evening of March 1st, a large assemblage being present.

PEDESTRIANISM.

W. H. ADDEITS VS. W. H. YOUNG.—The challenge which we gave publicity to last week, and which was issued on behalf of the tall Quaker City ped., Bill Young, has met with a quick response, the following note, which we append, on behalf of Addeits. He sends the following letter, accompanied by a check for $50, to cover Young's deposit:—

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Wednesday, March 8, 1871.

FRIEND QUEEN.—In this week's issue of your paper I noticed a challenge on behalf of Mr. W. H. Young to run George Forbes or W. H. Addeits any runs, from 100 to 150 yards, for $250 a side, and offering to give or take $50 for expenses, and to show that he meant business has left $50 in your hands. To show I mean the same, enclosed you will find $50 of my money for W. H. Addeits to run him 150 yards, for $250 a side, and I will give him $50 for expenses to come here; any kind for a start the race is run, and to run any day he likes in three or four weeks, and I will guarantee him a fair show. Hoping he means business, myself or Mr. Quimby will meet Mr. Young at your office on Wednesday, this inst., to sign articles and put up. My brother does not intend to run any more, so all challenges to him are useless. JOHN YOUNG.

P. P. Weston went through his twenty-five mile performance on Feb. 28th, at Union Hall, Johnstown, Pa. The time given for the distance, which is said to have been correctly measured, was four hours and forty-nine minutes.

BASE BALL.

THE CONVENTION OF PROFESSIONAL CLUBS.—The meeting of delegates from the professional clubs of the country, to take action in reference to adopting a regular code of rules regarding the championship, to arrange an equitable rule for selecting umpires and for playing the games of the season, is to be held in this city on March 17th—St. Patrick's day—at 949 Broadway, corner of Thirteenth street. The Secretary and Directors of the Mutual Club will be in attendance at the rooms on the afternoon of the 17th to receive the delegates, and the meeting will be called to order at 7 P. M. The best way for all the professional clubs to do would be to adopt Harry Wright's suggestion, and to come prepared to organize a regular association of professional clubs. Their proceedings will then be apparently authoritative and binding, whereas as a mere meeting of the secretaries nothing can be done of importance which would be regarded as law to the clubs, except to arrange the dates of their matches for the season. Let the professional clubs send their presidents as well as their secretaries, and let us have a regular professional convention which will adopt rules governing champion matches.

BASE BALL ASSOCIATION, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.—At a called meeting of this Association, held on the 2d inst., President F. G. Daniels, in a neat little speech, accepted the presidency of the Association, thanking the delegates for the honor. He then announced the following committees:—Committee on Nominations, O. A. Hough, National; N. E. Young, Olympic; —— Baker, Active. Judiciary Committee, A. R. Benner, National; H. C. McLean, Washington; T. W. Hungerford, Jefferson; R. A. Foster, Arlington; —— Shedd, Rosedale. Committee on Printing, H. O. Hoyt, Olympic; J. N. Potts, National. The constitution was ordered to be printed. An additional article to the by-laws was adopted, containing instructions for the judiciary committee. The association then adjourned for one week.

A COMPLIMENT TO W. H. KELLY, JR.—This gentleman, to whom the junior base ball fraternity are so much indebted for his energetic services in building up and supporting their National Association—the only association in existence at present devoted to the interests of the amateur class—was on Friday, March 3d, the recipient of a complimentary testimonial in the form of a series of resolutions expressive of the thanks of the junior fraternity for his efforts in their behalf. The occasion was marked by an elegant collation and an evening's social enjoyment.

THE OAK LEAF AND ALTA CLUBS played a game for a silver cup, presented by Mr. Balkwill, at Waterloo, Cal., on the 14th ult., the latter scoring 34 to 13.

ELECTION.—The Warren, Jr., Club of this city has been re-organized by the election of the following officers:—President, C. Pierce; Vice-President, J. Tally; Secretary, S. C. Tappan; Treasurer, W. Cathcart.

CURLING.

CLOSE OF THE SEASON.—The month of February terminated the most brilliant and successful curling season known in the annals of our metropolitan clubs, and the pleasant meetings had on the Central Park Pond will long be remembered with gratification. Though curling is no longer to be enjoyed in the states this season, the Canada clubs will play during March, the Mehames' club, of Toronto, and Thistle, of Ancaster, meeting on the 2d inst., when they played for a club medal, the Toronto rinks winning by two shots. Among the last games of the season in the states may be named the following:—

Albany Curling Club, on the 22d ult., between Scotsmen and Other Nationalities. The following was the result:—

SCOTSMEN.		OTHER NATIONALITIES.
A. McMurray, skip	21	J. Moffitt, skip	46
J. McCredie, skip	28	J. Weidman, skip	41
J. F. Smyth, skip	47—95	W. Kirk, skip	25—112

On Feb. 23d the following game was played at Ogdensburg, N. Y.:

OGDENSBURG.		PRESCOTT.
W. P. Plumb, skip	40	E. Mundie, skip	24
W. Congalton, skip	28	P. P. La Batt, skip	31
D. Anderson, skip	30—98	T. R. Melville, skip	24—79

A keenly contested match took place last week at Ogdensburg between boys of the Institute and of the Public Schools, from 11 to 16 years of age. After playing two hours the score stood thus:—

INSTITUTE.		PUBLIC SCHOOLS.
T. C. Aitchison, skip	10	J. G. Warner, skip	9
W. Congalton, skip	11—21	—— Bell, skip	8—17

YONKERS CURLING CLUB.—Two-thirds of the members of this club played a point game on March 1st, in competition with other clubs, for the Gordon medal. The result was as follows:—John Wheeler, 6; Wm. Macfarlane, 6; H. L. Garrison, 5; Geo. Frazier, 12; John White, 7; Isaiah Frazier, 8; Bernard Cullen, 4; M. K. Couzens, 9; C. T. Mercer, 2; Jas. Stewart, 7; John McLain, 11; Wm. B. Edgar, 9. Total, 86; average, 7 1-6. Mr. Lightbody, of the New York Club, acted as umpire.

BOTTOMING CHAIRS FOR PRIZES.—A novel contest took place, on the afternoon of Feb. 24th, at John Phillips' chair factory, cor. Green and Phillips streets, Chicago. For some time previous there had been considerable strife among the chair-bottoming craft as to who was the fastest workman. To settle the question of superiority, Mr. Phillips put up four prizes of $100, $50, $25 and $10 respectively, to be contested for against time. A general invitation was extended to the craft, and on the 24th representatives from New York, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and several other western states assembled at the factory of Mr. Phillips. The work had all been laid out before hand, and everything was prepared so that the largest possible amount of work could be done in the smallest possible period of time. The material used was flags, and the process of putting them in was by weaving them into matting. Mr. Phillips acted as judge and time keeper. Twelve men entered the contest, and the result was as follows:—John H. Cleaver, a German, of Chicago, won the first prize, putting the bottom in his chair in 20 minutes. George S. Mann, of Michigan, took the second prize, performing his work in 23 minutes. Geo. S. Smith, of Ohio, walked away with the third prize. He accomplished his task in 25 minutes. John Wright, of Rochester, N. Y., captured the fourth prize and last trophy, having done his work in 30 minutes. Such lively work at chair-bottoming probably was never seen before. A good deal of excitement and discussion followed the contest, several of the defeated parties offering to wager that they could do the little feat as quickly as did Mr. Cleaver.

A FRIEND IN DEED TO ANIMALS.—Louis Bonard, of this city, a somewhat eccentric but kind hearted man, recently deceased, bequeathed his entire fortune, of $140,000, to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. As often occurs in such cases, the will has already been placed under protest, one young Frenchman having already appeared, claiming to be a relative of Mr. Bonard, and the French Consul has taken steps to search for any relatives Bonard may have left in this country or in France. He has directed his lawyers, Messrs. Coudert Brothers, to appear in their behalf in this country and France. The Surrogate has therefore deemed it his duty to appoint a special administrator, for the purpose of taking charge of all papers, documents and letters which may have been left by the deceased, so as to discover, if possible, whether he has any living relatives. This is done in order that, if relatives are discovered, they can have the opportunity of appearing on the probate of the will—not because the will may not be valid, but for the reason that they are entitled by law to be heard. The property consists of about $40,000 in money, in trust companies, &c., and real estate of the value of about $100,000. The Sun "that shines for all," in its issue of Feb. 28th published the document entire, adding that "the will was prepared by Mr. J. G. Boyd, a distinguished lawyer of this city, whose office is in the CLIPPER BUILDING," to which we would add that, recognising Mr. Boyd's legal ability, the society above named have appointed him as their regular counsel.

CLEAVER'S SKITTLE CHALLENGE.—The portly bonifacer of the Metropolitan Hotel, East New York, Bob Smith, sends the appended conditional acceptance of the challenge issued by Bill Cleaver, of the Half Way House. Read it:—

FRANK QUEEN.—DEAR SIR.—In reply to a challenge from Mr. Cleaver, of Eighth avenue, New York, offering to back an amateur to clear the frame fifty times in one hour, throwing the ball under his leg, setting up his own pins and bringing back the ball every time, for $25 or $50 a side, I will accept that challenge on condition that I name the ground the game is to be played in. If he will place the money in your hands and let me know, I will cover it.

ROBERT SMITH, Metropolitan Hotel, East New York.

DEATH OF NED HODGKISS.—This old Oxford cricketer died at Cowley, Eng., on Feb. 10th, in the 81st year of his age. He was one of the Cowley village team, and had care of the Bullingdon Cricket ground for more than half a century. On many occasions he was selected to play in the teams pitted against the University Elevens, and was considered one of the fastest underhand bowlers ever known. His contemporaries were Cobbett and Broadbridge, and no doubt he will be well remembered by gentlemen who were members of the Bullingdon Club, with which he was principally connected for a long course of years.

JOHN CLAIR, of Ann Harbor, Mich., says that he will accomodate Charles Mann, of Battle Creek, with a main of cocks and stags, the latter to fix the amount to be staked. He will meet Manny at Jackson whenever the latter desires to make arrangements, the main to be fought in a Detroit pit within three weeks from date of completing arrangements.

WALTER HARRINGTON, of Dixmont, Pa., says he has a friend who will bet $100 that he can eat a partridge a day for 40 days, at a certain hour daily; or he will attempt it for a purse.

A BIG TROUT, weighing 18 lbs., and measuring 37 inches long, was recently caught in the Upper Saranac River.

J. B. MORRIS, of Hickory, Pa., is said to have lately made 221 horse shoe nails in an hour

Edinburgh (when children); and on Feb. 11th, upon the occasion of the visit of the Royal children to the pantomime of the "Sleeping Beauty," at Covent Garden, he had the distinguished honor of appearing before a third generation, having been forty-seven years a servant to the public.

MR. H. L. BATEMAN has leased the Lyceum Theatre, London, Eng., for five years from the first of next Sept.

MISS ELISA TRAVERS (Mrs. J. F. Brent), for many years a prominent member of the company of Sadler's Wells Theatre, London, Eng., when under Mr. Phelps' management, died in that city on Feb. 8th. She had retired from the stage some ten years since.

CHARLES H. THOMPSON, late acting manager of the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, Eng., died in London, Eng., Feb. 7th.

CAROLINE BOLTON, the wife of Edwin Bolton, the comedian, died in London, Eng., Jan. 31st, aged 39 years.

GEORGE LOVELL, the father of Tom Lovell, Pantaloon, of the Surrey Theatre, died in London, Eng., Feb. 13th, after a few days' illness, aged fifty-eight.

MLLE BEATRICE'S FROU FROU COMPANY was announced to commence an engagement of three nights in Bath, Eng., on Feb. 20th.

MISS EDITH SANFORD commenced an engagement of six nights in St. Helens, Eng., Feb. 13th.

MISS HEATH AND WILSON BARRETT were to commence an engagement at the Adelphi, Liverpool, Eng., on Feb. 27th.

MESSRS. MONTAGUE, JAMES AND THORNE'S COMPANY, playing the "Two Roses," in the conclusion of their engagement in Glasgow, Scotland, Feb. 25th, were to commence in Birmingham, Eng., for six nights on Feb. 27th.

RICHARD YOUNGS'S COMPANY, playing the Robertson comedies, was announced to commence a brief engagement in Exeter, Feb. 20th.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF E. L. KNAPP, acting manager of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, Scotland, the principal feature of the performance was a posthumous play of the late T. W. Robertson, entitled "Polly," which was spoken of as follows:—"It included few, if any, of Mr. Robertson's excellences, except perhaps in structure, in which the merit of the piece almost entirely consists. It possesses very little interest, and the story and dialogue do not amount to much. There are only six characters, all of which found suitable representatives."

ACTIVE PREPARATIONS ARE MAKING for the re-opening of the theatres in Paris, France. At the Opera Comique, the scenes and properties, which had been piled up on the stage, and covered with various protectors against fire, are being overhauled. The scenes of the Opera were preserved by being covered with about three feet of sand. All the scenery of the various theatres had been preserved, and the report of its having been burned was erroneous.

Variety Halls.

LITTLE OR NO NOVELTY has occurred at the London, Eng., Music Halls since our past issues. At the Alhambra, Jullien's "Army Quadrille," with all the original effects, was revived on Feb. 13th. A selection from "Il Trovatore," with a cornet solo by Mr. Somers, proved successful. Mr. T. Swinbourne recited "The Two Brothers," Miss Susanna Cole, Miles Fanny Huddart, Julie Ludgini and Siedle; Mr. R. Lascelles, Signor Bordegni, M. Georges Dubreuil, Mr. George Bicknell, Herr Jonghmans, Mr. Stanley, Mr. T. Maclagan, and a chorus selected from the Royal Italian Opera and principal London theatres, constituted the other chief attractions.....At the South London, the ballet of "Hyperion" continues a chief feature. George Leybourne, W. Randall and H. Wingett have furnished the comic portion of the entertainment. Leggett and Allen, song and dance, are great favorites here; Hannan and Rixon, Ethiopian comedians; the D'Aubans and Wardes, dancers, and Mr. Frederick and Miss Julien, duettists, were among the chief features.....At the London Pavilion, Messrs. Lobi and Sonnhammer, the proprietors, took a benefit on Feb. 14th, and were rewarded with a crowded auditorium. The programme was of more than the usual length, and from seven until one o'clock a constant succession of singers appeared.

HERR HOLTUM, the cannon ball performer, was at the Crystal Palace Concert Hall, Birmingham, at our last advices.

MR. NATHAN WEBSTER was announced to open the Theatre Royal, Carlisle, Eng., as a Music Hall, on Feb. 27th.

HARRY LISTON and his concert company performed in Derby, Eng., Feb. 11th.

MLLE. ESTHER AUSTIN and her ballet troupe, a comic concert party, James Doughty and his troupe of trained dogs and monkeys, were announced to commence a brief season in the Round Room of the Rotunda, Dublin, Ireland, Feb. 20th.

ARTHUR LLOYD and his concert party performed in Gravesend, Feb. 13th; Brighton, 18th, where he was announced to remain the 20th; Southampton the balance of that week.

HARRY CLIFTON and his concert company performed in Great Yarmouth, Eng., Feb. 13th and 14th.

VANCE, the comic vocalist, and his company, recently performed four nights in Hull, Eng.

THE MANAGER of the Gateshead, Eng., theatre was fined £10, a few days ago, for allowing Miss Braham and her Parisian female troupe to dance the Can-can at this theatre.

Negro Minstrelsy.

MESSRS. PIKE, Reed, Beverly, and the quintet party are the chief features of Sam Hague's Star Troupe, who were performing, at our latest advices, with success in St. James Hall, Liverpool, Eng.

THE QUEEN'S MINSTRELS, under the management of Bernard and Vaniris, were announced to perform during the week ending Feb. 25th in Nottingham and Birmingham, Eng.

THE MATTHEWS BROTHERS' CHRISTY MINSTRELS performed in Leicester, Eng., Feb. 11th and 13th.

PAGE'S CHRISTY MINSTRELS performed in Merthyr Tydfil, Wales, Feb. 11th and 13th.

Circuses.

MLLE. LULU, the wonderful performer, who is attracting so much attention at the Royal Amphitheatre and Circus, Holborn, London, Eng., is not of the female sex, as was supposed, but a lively boy named Farini, who has for some time past been performing with his father in various music halls, in the immediate neighborhood. Another Ella Zoyars sensation. His feats are nevertheless wonderful. We have this upon the authority of M. Blondin, performer on the high rope, who states in a letter written to a friend in this city that he immediately recognized in M'lle Lulu the boy Farini..... Manders' Menagerie was in Alnwick, Eng., Feb. 11th and 13th..... The Brothers Fillis and Miss Ada Isaacs were the fresh faces at Belle's Hippodrome, Birmingham, Eng., at our latest advices.....The Brothers and M'lle de Glorion, trapezists, were the novelties for the week ending Feb. 18th at Ginnett's Circus, Dublin, Ireland.....At the Royal Hippodrome, Manchester, Eng., an entire new company, under the management of Pablo Fanque, appeared on Feb. 13th. Among them were M'lle Ethair, trick rider; Master W. Phillips, Mr. Clifford Wallett, C. Ethair and Little Minnie, equestrians; the Brothers Saule, horizontal bar; Mr. Phillips, trapeze; Messrs. Chappell, Dan Phillips, Sweeny and Saule, clowns .....Edmunds' Menagerie, at latest advices, was exhibiting in Shrewsbury, Eng..... No novelties were reported at the other circuses, and judging from the number of benefits that had taken place, the season was about to close.

Miscellaneous.

GRACE EGERTON AND MR. GEORGE CARR were announced to perform in Wittlesea, Eng., Feb. 20th; Peterboro, 21st; Bayswater, 27th.

PROFESSOR ANDERSON, the Wizard of the North, while performing in Sunderland, on Feb. 10th, got involved in a political discussion with some of his auditors, concerning which the Sedanian newspaper of Feb. 11th says:—"Professor Anderson took occasion to make repeated references to the Continental war, to Bismarck, Germany and the Germans, in anything but complimentary terms. In the front seats were the German Consul, (Mr. Weiner,) his wife, and a party of friends. Another gentleman, (the head of a German firm in Sunderland,) rose and gave a denial to the statements of the Wizard, and this seemed only the more to irritate him. Just before the close of the performance Mr. Anderson, stepping forward, and claiming to be independent of [illegible] daughter there, (pointing to Miss Anderson at the piano forte,) had declined to play the 'Marseillaise,' because of the presence of the German consul. 'Who,' Mr. Anderson asked, 'was the German consul? What was he?' He thanked him for his patronage, but no more.' Mr. Anderson went on to say that the Germans should have been fighting for their country, and proceeded in a strain which again called up the German merchant, who protested that they had come there to see the Professor's tricks, not to hear his politics. A scene of confusion followed. The audience at the back part of the hall got on to the seats, some hissing the German merchant and others the 'wizard;' and in the midst of the noise the occupants of the front seats rose and took their departure, including the German consul and his friends. The Professor, excited, was declaiming from the stage, the German merchant was on his feet, appealing for a hearing, when the 'wizard' fired a pistol, which caused a number of ducks confined in a tub on the stage to squatter out among the audience with a great din. The performance broke up amidst great disorder."

FIFTH AVENUE THEATR

YE LAY OF YE LAST MINSTREL.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY FELIX QUILP.

"I'll sing you a ballad," the minstrel man said,
"And plaintive and sad as the prayers for the dead,
Or the sigh of the sounding sea.

"I'll sing you a ballad," the minstrel man said,
"Of a maid and a gay cavalier,
Who lived near the tarn where ghosts nightly tread
In the ghoul-haunted woodlands of Wier.

"A Duchess she was on her grandmother's side,
And he a bass-drummer by birth;
She loved him so true for his worth and his pride;
He loved her for what she was worth.

"At jousts and at tourneys he won great renown,
And laid out full many a 'stiff;'
His name on the books was Plantagenet Brown,
And hers was Miss Imogene Sniff.

"This gallant bass-drummer he played C. Melnotte
And talked in a strain quite sublime,
He told how he'd order a grove on the spot,
And how other climes he would climb.

"The gaslights of Heaven shone bright on her head,
The man in the moon he looked down—
'Oh gallant, oh gallant, oh-gallant,' she said,
'Oh gallant Plantagenet Brown.'

"A year by time's dial, a year and a day,
Passed over the maiden and youth,
But time in its journey fades flowers alway,
And it faded the flower of truth.

"Plantagenet Brown was a false cavalier,
As base as his bass-drum, I ween;
This pious old fraud he went back on his dear,
And biked the fair Imogene.

"A widow he married, quite forty and fat,
A widow he married right soon,
Who came from the south—south of Ireland at that,
Which her name it was Mrs. Muldoon.

"Then Ipogene purchased a lone moated grange,
And lears, idle tears she would shed,
And stirring all night by the warm kitchen range,
'I'm awful aweary,' she said.

"The gaslights of Heaven shone bright on her head—
The man in the moon he looked down—
'Oh cruel, oh cruel, oh cruel,' she said,
'Oh cruel Plantagenet Brown.'"

ROME—THE BRIDGE AND CASTLE OF ST. ANGELO—DUNGEON OF BEATRICE DE CENCI—TOMB OF HADRIAN—THE SQUARE AND CHURCH OF ST. PETER.

Having but a short time to stay in Rome, we started out to have a good view of the Church of St. Peter, the largest church in the world. Our way lay through narrow, dirty streets, until we came to the Piazza Pia; from this square four streets converge, and in the distance is famous bridge and Castle of St. Angelo. The bridge is a splendid marble structure of five arches; the sides are lined with colossal marble statues of celebrated saints; the river Tiber, so celebrated in history, is here nothing more than a narrow, muddy stream; facing the bridge on the opposite side is the Castle of St. Angelo, now used as a fortress and state prison; it is a large, circular building, on a square base, and was originally erected by the Emperor Hadrian as a monumental tomb for himself and family. In the centre of the structure, reached by a winding passage, is the Tomb Chamber; here are the niches in which were placed the urns containing the ashes of the dead Emperors; these niches are now empty, the urns having been removed. When the Goths besieged Rome this tomb was converted into a fortress and has remained so ever since. It was here, in 1527, that Pope Clement VII underwent that famous siege on which the Constable Bourbon, was shot. The guns of this castle are now used to fire national salutes and usher in gala days. A covered passage leads from this fortress to the Vatican, where the Pope could take refuge in time of danger. Beneath the fortress are several gloomy dungeons, once inhabited by Beatrice de Cenci, Cagliostro, the sorcerer—or Joseph Balsamo—Cellini, the murderer of the Constable, Bourbon, and many others. A vaulted room here leads to an ancient magazine, containing eighty large boilers used for heating oil to pour down on the heads of the besiegers. There is also a suit of apartments fitted up for the Pope when he has occasion to inhabit the castle.

On leaving the fortress, and turning to the right, a walk of about five minutes brings us to the Piazzo de S. Pietro, or the square of St. Peter. This is enclosed by a crescent formed of colonades; the length of this enclosure as far as the portico of the church is 1,034 feet, and its greatest breadth is 588 feet; the colonades consist of four series of columns, enclosing covered passages, on the roofs of which are placed 126 statues of saints. The whole presents a strikingly imposing aspect, and forms an appropriate approach to the largest, the most impressive and most beautiful church in the world. In the centre of the square is a massive granite obelisk, which was brought to Rome by the Emperor Caligula. On the pedestal which supports the obelisk is placed an indicator, composed of different colored marble, of all the points of the compass; at each side of the obelisk are two handsome fountains. Passing these we now approach the front of the Church of St. Peter. The facade or portico has a length of 394 feet, and a height of 158 feet, the great columns of the facade are 101 feet high and six and a half feet in diameter; on the balustrade are the statues of our Saviour and the twelve apostles. From the central balcony of the second story the Pope on solemn occasions bestowed his benediction on the multitude who assembled by thousands in the square below. There are five entrances to the vestibule, and from this five doorways lead into the church; one of these doors is considered sacred, and is consequently kept closed; the last time it was opened was in the year 1625.

The Church of St. Peter stands on the site of the Circus of Nero, and on the spot where St. Peter suffered martyrdom. It was hundreds of years in building, and all that wealth and art could do to embellish and beautify it has been done. The length of the church is 616 feet; breadth of the transept, 500 feet; height of the dome, from the pavement to the lantern, 405 feet; the aisles are 33 feet wide. The great bronze doors of the central entrance are only opened during the highest festivals. At other times two side doors are used. On entering the church the effect produced on the mind by the immense space, the harmony of the proportions and the richness of the decorations is indescribable. The church contains 200 windows, 390 statues, 46 altars and 748 columns. On the pavement of the nave, just within the principal entrance, is a slab of porphyry, on which the emperors were formerly crowned. On each side of the nave, as far as the dome, are immense marble pillars, which bear the arches which uphold the gorgeously fretted and gilded vaulting of the ceiling. The niches of the pillars here and in other parts of the church contain statues of the founders of the various orders. The pavement, like the walls, consists entirely of marble, beautifully inlaid. On the right, at the first of the great piers supporting the dome, is the celebrated colossal bronze statue of St. Peter, in a sitting position. One of its feet is kissed by the faithful, from the noble to the lowest beggar. The great toe of the right foot is nearly worn away by the frequent contact of the lips of the devotees. We now stand beneath the massive dome, which rests on four huge buttresses, the niches of which are occupied by statues sixteen feet in height. Beneath the dome rises the great canopy of gilt bronze, 92 feet in height, upheld by four richly gilded spiral columns; beneath the canopy is the high altar where the Pope only reads mass on high festivals. This stands immediately over the tomb of St. Peter, which is surrounded by 95 lamps, which are kept burning day and night during the year, except Good Friday. The descent to the tomb is by a double marble stairway; doors of gilded bronze close the niche which contains the sarcophagus of the Apostle. At the foot of the stairs facing the tomb is a kneeling statue of the Pope. Proceeding onward, we reach the apse, ascended by two steps of red Egyptian marble; here is a chair of gilt bronze, which contains the veritable chair of St. Peter himself; beneath the pavement of the church, the entrance of which is through a pillar beneath the dome, is a vast subterranean gallery containing tombs of departed emperors, nobles, statesmen and saints, and a great many statues and works of art. The ascent to the dome is reached by eight flights of steps, 142 in all. The walls bear memorial tablets of royal personages who have made the ascent. The dome rises 300 feet above the roof, and is 613 feet in circumference. A gallery within the dome affords a striking view of the interior. A stairway ascends between the external and internal walls of the dome to the lantern, whence a view of the entire church and the surroundings is obtained. A narrow iron stair, admitting only one person at a time, leads to the copper ball on the summit, which can hold sixteen persons, but affords no view. Immediately adjoining St. Peters is the Vatican, the residence of the Pope, and the largest museum and picture gallery in the world, a full description of which I will give you in my next.

"I baed you," said Chakey, und off dey vend; vich vas nod a galland, bud a very tam sensible action, and id?

MY EXPERIENCE AS A MINSTREL.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER.
BY F. W.

Were you ever stage struck?

No.

I was once; but I was effectually cured, and if you have got time I will tell you how it happened.

From childhood I manifested a taste for minstrelsy, and by the time I was fifteen years old I knew every gag and act that ever was written, and every step that a song and dance man ever did. All my spare change I spent visiting the minstrel halls, and I only wanted an opportunity to display my talents. One morning, while reading the newspaper, my eye was attracted by the following advertisement:—

WANTED.—An old established and well known minstrel company with a good middle man. An amateur wishing to learn the business will find this an unusual opportunity. Call on Mr. Winslow Bowker, No. 12 —— street.

Here was the chance I had wished for. I started for Mr. Bowker, imagining I should find a small army of would be minstrels, each one desiring the situation, but happily no one was there, and Mr. B. received me in the most cordial manner. We were not long in coming to terms. I was to play in the middle and sing a ballad. The company, he informed me, had been traveling for the last five years and were now working west. The next morning I met the company, which consisted of Mr. Bowker, myself and two end men, at the depot, and took the cars for A——, where we were to make our début. The orchestra Mr. B. said had gone on an hour before.

We arrived at A——, and at once repaired to the hall for rehearsal; everybody was ready, but no orchestra was to be found. Mr. B. said that we would wait until the afternoon train, which they, no doubt, would come in. Until then I was politely informed that I would have to take some hand-bills and distribute them through the town, with six inches of snow on the ground and the thermometer at zero. This being that all middle men were required to do the same, I consented.

At three o'clock I returned to the hall, but no musicians had arrived. Mr. B. said that we must all go through the village and find out if any musicians lived there; if there did, to engage them at any price. I thought it rather singular in a company which had been traveling for five years that the whole orchestra should suddenly step out on them. After inquiring at several houses, I found that person who played a violin, and was called Uncle Billy, had performed at several parties the winter before, and he lived three miles out of town. I started for his house, which I reached in an hour and a half. My approach was heralded by the barking of a brown dog, which continued to howl until I reached him, when with the help of the toe of my boot he laid himself in the gutter. I was told at the house that Uncle Billy was at work in a field half a mile further on. So I went, and at last found him. Upon my guaranteeing him an unusually large sum, he consented to play for us.

At five o'clock I arrived at the hall; the rest of the company had returned without finding any musicians. Uncle Billy arrived at six o'clock, and upon inspecting him we'd scovered that one leg was several inches shorter than the other, and at every step he had the appearance of bowing in the most impr ved French manner. His repertoire was very limited, and he could not read; so we would have to sing the ballads without music. The hall was now very near full and the company were in the dressing-room—one corner of the hall divided off with the American flag—backing up. To add to our many troubles, upon Uncle Billy's removing his hat, we'd discovered that his hair was as white as the snow on the ground, and not an extra wig to be found; so he was obliged to black not only his face, but his hair. Everyone ready, we marched on to the stage.

The appearance of Uncle Billy blacked up and limping on with us, who had been advertised as from the "Far West," was more than the B'hoys could stand, and he was hailed with:—

"O! look at Uncle Billy!"

"See Bill—I'l be d—d."

"How are you, Bill?"

And similar exclamations. Order being restored, I called:—

"Overture."

And I continued to call it until I gave him a punch in the ribs which brought him to his senses, and he commenced to scrape out the overture. The next was my ballad:—"Come Sit by My Side Little Darling." I had sung part of the first verse, when a woman in the audience cried out:—

"I'll sit by your side; you wait 'till I get you outside."

She was removed by the police, and I was told afterwards that she was drunk. I sang the remainder of the song without interruption either by applause or drunken women.

The first part was through, and I went into the dressing room—or, rather, behind the flag—to wash up; one of the end men at the time being on the stage endeavoring to do a stump speech, when some of the audience hissed, which was enough. In two minutes the whole house was in an uproar, the stage strewn with apple-cores, snow-balls and sticks of wood; the seats were broken up, and the audience indulged in a general free fight, in the midst of which the flag was torn down, revealing the company in the process of changing themselves to white men, which was a difficult job, especially with Uncle Billy, who had used four bars of soap endeavoring to clean his head.

After the flag was torn down I waited no longer, but seizing my carpet-bag in one hand and my clothes in the other, jumped out of the window, a distance of fifty feet, to the ground. I landed on my feet and thanks to the snow I was not much hurt, and was about to offer up thanks for my safe arrival on terra firma, when I was seized by the leg with the grip of a vice; upon looking around I discovered to my consternation that it was Uncle Billy's dog, which, no doubt, intended revenging himself on me for my treatment of him in the morning; but with a jerk I cleared myself, leaving a piece of my pants and also a large piece of flesh in his mouth. I started on a break-neck run for the woods, which were some distance further on. I did not stop until I was in the middle of the wood, and then I rested.

It would never do for me to be seen going through the town with my face black; the infuriated audience would mob me; but how could I wash myself? I walked on and soon found a pond of water; I broke a hole in the ice and proceeded to wash; in doing it I froze three fingers and my nose. I arranged my clothes and started for the depot to wait for the morning train. As I passed through the village, I saw by the town clock that it was midnight. The snow now commenced to fall thick and fast—I must find some shelter—I couldn't stay out in the storm four hours. For once I was in luck; I could crawl under the platform in front of the depot. I directed my steps in that direction and had almost reached it, when suddenly three black heads appeared from under the platform.

It was the rest of the company.

I quickened my pace, glad that we had met again; but, to my surprise, in addition to the heads three bodies appeared and started on a run for the woods. I called to them again and again, until one more courageous than the rest stopped, and, on my reaching him, I was told that I had been taken for the whole audience in pursuit to tar and feather them. I showed them the pond, and they very soon returned somewhat whiter. The train being due, found us on the platform waiting; we presented a dilapidated appearance; but we had cheek, and when the train arrived we stepped aboard, without a cent of money in any of our pockets, and took our seats. We rode until the conductor came around, when we were politely informed that at the next station we could get off, which we did, and walked home. During our journey Mr. Bowker confessed that he never traveled five years, and that Mr. Reed, one of the end men and our would-be minstrel, had furnished the capital.

Mr. Bowker, as soon as we neared town, disappeared, and I arrived home a sadder but wiser person than I ever was before.

AN OTTER CHASE AFTER A SALMON.—A somewhat unusual scene was witnessed the other day near the south bank of Lock Linnhe, Scotland. Six large otters were seen chasing a salmon along the shore, and when at last they succeeded in capturing it, apparently the question of its ownership formed the subject of a most serious dispute among themselves. After a fierce engagement, lasting for several minutes, one of the party made for the shore with the object of its contention in its possession, leaving the others to "fight it out." Although a landing was effected without much difficulty, other obstacles to a peaceful enjoyment of the salmon presented themselves. There being no "cover" near the sea to take the booty into, the runaway otter deemed it necessary to take to the hills, but, being narrowly watched by a number of youths, the animal was pursued, and, not being able to make much progress under the circumstances, the salmon was surrendered to the pursuers, the otter returning. Whence it came, no doubt convinced of the truth of the old adage that there is "many a slip between the cup and the lip."

THE HEATHEN CHINEE.—In the Oregon Legislature a member asked and obtained leave to introduce a bill to enable the state of Oregon to have a dead thing on Chinamen:—

Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon:—

SECTION 1. No Chinaman shall be allowed to die in this state until he has paid ten dollars for a new pair of boots with which to kick the bucket.

SEC. 2. Any Chinaman dying under this act shall be buried six feet under ground.

SEC. 3. Any Chinaman who attempts to dig up another Chinaman's bones shall first procure a license from the Secretary of State, for which he shall pay four dollars.

SEC. 4. Any dead Chinaman who attempts to dig up his own bones, without giving notice to the Secretary of State, shall be fined one hundred dollars.

SEC. 5. Any Chinaman who shall be born without bones, for the purpose of wilfully and feloniously evading the provisions of this act, shall be fined five hundred dollars.

CUPID'S FOIBLES, FOLLIES AND FANCIES.

OUT ON THE WORLD!

WRITTEN EXPRESSLY FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY E. S. MARBLE.

Alone am I in this world of sin,
Not even a kind friend's care—
None to advise a helpless girl—
Misery—want—my share.
What can I do? my mother dead,
My father killed in the war;
No brother, no sister, alone in the streets,
Begging from door to door.

Not long ago, with a roof o'er my head,
There was one, oh! to me, so dear—
Now I'm an outcast, penniless, too,
To see me he seems to have fear.
The sweet words of love he'd pour in my ear
I thought I could never repay—
Look at me now—but still I'll not curse,
But he brought me to this, I may say.

No longer for bread could I ask at each house;
No longer to beg or starve in the cold;
No longer to lead such a life of despair
I sold then my body and soul for gold.
Winter has come—alas! he's another's,
And I oftentimes pass by his door;
When they sit of a night, by his fire's bright light,
My heart bleeds to see it the more.

That is my place, and my home by right,
For I loved him, God knows, with devotion:
See how she presses those lips that were mine,
And seems then to watch every motion.
To-morrow is Christmas—last Christmas day
He sat by my side, as he's sitting there now,
And that very night—I ne'er shall forget—
He made to me then such a sweet, solemn vow.

"Lillie," he said, "when next Christmas comes
(And truth was in every feature)
You will then be my own darling wife;"
But instead he's broken down creature.
God forgive me to-night for the deed I shall do—
Sin, shame, and sorrow's my worth—
Offer a prayer for the heart broken wretch,
For to-night is my last on this earth.

A body's brought out of the river next day,
To place 'neath the cold, solemn, sod;
To identify none can be found, so she lies
Awaiting her fate before God.

A SPANISH DANSEUSE IN TROUBLE.

Catherina Manuel Joel is the name of a Spanish lass of sweet eighteen, who, in 1869, left her native country for California with inflated fancies, hoping to better her fortune with an alliance with some one of the modern Gonconda's millionaires. She arrived at San Francisco in July, 1869, and temporarily resided with a married sist-r who had preceded her, but, being of an independent spirit and not wishing to be beholden to friends for support, and having musical and terpsichorean ability, she sought and secured an engagement at one of the places of amusement there, at a salary, it is said, of $120 per week. Manuel now considered her fortune made and rushed to her sister to inform her of her good fortune, who, however, was first surprised and next alarmed, and almost upbraided the youthful maiden with bringing a stur upon their family by entering upon the stage. Manuel heeded not, however, but commenced her theatrical career, and it was not long before she became the talk of the city. Things went on for several months quelly enough, and Manuel danced and sang and sang and danced, all the time putting by a large portion of her salary, which was excellent for one so young and inexperienced, into a bank. At length she began to be the object of attention of several young gallants, who were constant in their visits to the green room and behind the scenes, and she was no longer the free and easy maiden of former days. She had to submit to being

THE TURF.

THE LATE RACES IN CANADA.

COUNTER STATEMENTS.

The communication signed by John Schiller, and to which we gave publicity in our issue of Feb. 25th, has created great excitement and indignation among those interested in the recent race meeting near Toronto. Seri ous charges, impugning the integrity of several persons, and characterizing the whole affair as an attempt to swindle the public out of their money, were made by him, to which we have received the following reply, flatly contradicting those statements, and reflecting severely upon the actions and character of Mr. Schiller. To this is added corroborative certificates from judges, drivers, the owner of Orillia Queen, and our correspondent, all of which will prove of interest to the readers of this department. Read them:—

TORONTO, Feb. 26th, 1871.

EDITOR OF THE CLIPPER.—SIR.—In my capacity as reporter for one of the leading daily newspapers of Canada, a portion of whose duty it is to attend and honestly chronicle the various sporting events occurring throughout the Dominion, I have, in the faithful discharge of that duty, and actuated with a desire to promote the fortunes of the turf, been compelled at various times to expose the swindling transactions of dishonest jockeys and the illegal ruling of venal judges. The course pursued, while it has earned the thanks of every honest sporting man in this country, has also stirred up the wrath and ill will of those whose disgraceful conduct has been exposed. I regret that my last exposure of the dishonest doings of some members of this gang has been the indirect cause of several representative Canadian sporting men being grossly attacked through the columns of such an influential sporting journal as the CLIPPER. I allude to a letter which appeared in your issue of the 26th inst., over the signature of John Schiller, every word of which condemnation is a base falsehood and slanderous attack upon the reputation of honorable men. The proof appended to this article will, I trust, satisfy you of the truth of my statements.

The CLIPPER of the 18th of Feb. contained an account of the trotting races held on Ashbridge's Bay, in the immediate neighborhood of Toronto, on the 2d and 3d of the same month. I am not aware who was the author of said communication, but I do know that the report was in every respect truthful, but not nearly severe enough upon the two dishonest judges whose decisions were the cause of the trouble, and whose dishonorable conduct received a merited chastisement in the columns of the three daily papers published in this city, viz.: the Telegraph, Globe and Leader.

With your permission, Mr. Editor, I will now proceed to disprove the allegations contained in Schiller's letter, published in your paper. The opening charge made is to the effect that the races were a "put up job" on the part of James Carson, S. D. Page, Charlie Gates and Tommy Dodds. In disprovement thereof I would state that, of the four individuals mentioned, Mr. Page was the only one who had aught to do with getting up the races. Mr. Carson, a hotel keeper in this city and a well respected citizen, did nothing more than give his subscription and assist by his influence in getting his sporting friends to patronise the same. No. 2.—S. D. Page, who, as a pool seller, is known to and trusted by every race attendant in the Dominion, and who was also one of the official auctioneers at the Buffalo races last autumn, was the gentleman who originated the meeting and elected judges, etc. No. 3.—Charlie Gates was never spoken to about the races, did not subscribe a cent to the list, and participated only as a driver of one of the horses that trotted at the meeting. The last named individual, so facetiously cognomened Tommy Dodds, is Mr. E. King Dod, a member of the staff of the Toronto Daily Telegraph. This gentleman had nothing whatever to do with getting up the races, further than to announce the coming event in the columns of the journal he represents.

The next false statement by Schiller is to the effect that purses to the amount of $500 were advertised and that not one third of this sum was collected. My reply to this fabrication is that the exact amount of premiums advertised on the bills was $485, and that all the different purses to the amount advertised were paid in full, the only exception being the open trot. For this purse the fast ice horse Mazeppa (of Hamilton) was entered; the result was that no other horse would pay entry against him. Mr. Page, to recompense the owner of Mazeppa, Mr. Simon James, generously gave that gentleman $50 for expenses incurred in bringing his horse a distance of forty miles, and being, through lack of entries, debarred from trotting for the money.

Next comes a statement that the advertised judges, the Honorable C. I. Douglas, Joseph Grand and H. White, suspecting the movements of "the ring," purposely kept away from the races. The statement is false, however, was very different. The Hon. Mr. Douglas was detained at his home, 15 miles from Toronto, on very important legal business; Mr. Joseph Grand was, owing to the absence of his son, who acts as manager of his business, unable to leave his establishment; the third judge, Mr. H. White, who is a commercial traveler for a leading wholesale house in this city, was unable to return from his trip in time to attend. The statement annexed to this article, bearing the signatures of the three parties alluded to, will prove the truth of my statements.

Schiller next states that the substitutes were Carson, Dodds and "little Major" Peel. This is another deliberate falsehood. The judges on the first day were Mr. John Smith, Member of Parliament for Kent, who attended at the personal request of Mr. Carson, and the desired him to act in his stead; the second judge was Mr. Darrow, of Hamilton; the third, Mr. E. King Dod, the same party before alluded to in this article, and who only consented to act at the last moment and at the urgent solicitation of Mr. Smith, M. P. The "Major" Peel, so contemptuously alluded to, is a wealthy English gentleman, residing in this neighborhood, whose reputation as an honest sporting man stands too high in Canada to suffer by any charges made by such a man as John Schiller.

Next comes the statement that a horse entered under the name of Rattler was, although able to win the race, held back to give first position to Dusty Miller, and that this work was winked at by the judges. My reply to this is an accompanying statement from the owner of the horse in question. The next charge by this rustic Munchausen is to the effect that the judges of the first day feared to repeat their tactics an the second day, and induced this poor innocent Schiller and another gentleman to act in their stead, and help in carrying in, however, one of the ring, Pat Davey, to protect their interests. This statement is no more truthful than the preceding ones. Mr. Smith, who was in Toronto in attendance at the local Legislature then in session, was on the second day, owing to the sitting of a Committee of the House, of which he was a member, unable to appear. Mr. Dod refused to act, stating as his reason that he had money bet on one of the races. The parties finally selected were John Schiller, of Cooksville; Owen Nolan, of Hamilton, and Patrick Davey, a hotel keeper of Toronto. The first two named individuals, at the time they were appointed, denied having any money interest in the races; the pool book, on the other hand, proves that both of them had bet heavily against what proved the winning nag. The third judge, Mr. Davey, is not a betting man, and had not a single dollar staked on any race during the meeting.

Schiller also charges that a superior track had been prepared by Carson and Page, on which the horse that "must win" was to trot. This accusation is on a par with his other fabrications. The following is a correct account of the state of the track the day of the races, in proof of which I forward the account published in the Toronto press—also the statement of two of the drivers in the race; the third driver being a resident of a distant section of the Province, I am unable to reach him in time. It was originally intended by Mr Page to prepare five separate tracks, and four days preceding the races the workmen commenced operations, one track being completed that day, but a sudden thaw set in during the ensuing night, and it was found impossible, the thaw continuing up to the day of the meeting, to do any good with the snow plow through the surface slush. It was, therefore, determined to give up the endeavor to make any more separate tracks, but to clear, to the best of their ability, one broad track. This was done immediately alongside of the narrow track first prepared. The day of the race the starter, Mr. James Carson, assisted by Mr. Simon James, of Hamilton, when allotting the three respective positions, asked if there were any of them had any preference; if so, to agree among themselves which would take the narrow course. The drivers of Aurora Boy and Clear Grit both stated that they had no choice. Mr. Johnson, the owner and driver of Orillia Queen, then stated that if any of his fellow drivers, had no objection, he would take the single track; this was agreed to; he started in that position and won the heat by thirty lengths. The judges gave it to him and made not the slightest objection respecting the position, in which he trotted. The second heat was a repetition of the first but now the judges, Schiller and Nowlan, commenced to show their cards. They were heavy backers of the losing horses, and, to save their money if possible, decided it must be done by a change. Johnson to trot in the other track, which that gentleman reasonably refused to do, claiming his right to retain the position first assigned him, and to which, as winner of two heats, he had then the additional right of position. The third heat was trotted by him on the same track and won as easily as the preceding two. Schiller and Nowlan then, contrary to the opinion of Davey, decided the heat in favor of the second horse and placed the Queen in the first position, at this stage of the proceedings Mr. Johnson discussed these two model judges of having money staked on the losing horses. They admitted the charge and speedily beat a hasty retreat from the track, Nowlan clearing on the first train for Hamilton and Schiller sailing home to Cooksville. When they heard that pools were declared off they sent deputies to redraw their money from the box. Mr. Page, the originator of the races, now stepped upon the stand, and declared, amid the cheers of over a thousand people, Orillia Queen the winner of the race in three straight heats, and stated that, to satisfy all parties and to prove how much he regretted the disgraceful conduct of the two judges, Schiller and Nowlan, he had decided, and in that decision was supported by the two gentlemen who would appear as losers thereby, to declare all pools and bets off. Such was the course pursued by Mr. Page, with the willing acquiescence of "the ring," whom Schiller accuses of an attempt to swindle the public.

Such is a straightforward statement of facts, substantiated by the accompanying names. While apologising for the length of this communication, I feel, Mr. Editor, that I could not, in justice to the many honorable gentlemen so basely slandered, curtail its length. Trusting to your courtesy, love of fair play and willingness to repair the unintentional injury committed by the publication in the CLIPPER of Schiller's untruthful statements, I enclose my card and beg to subscribe myself yours fraternally,

A TRUTHFUL REPORTER.

TORONTO, Feb. 24th, 1871.

We, the undersigned, appointed by Mr. S. D. Page to act as judges at the races advertised to be held on Ashbridge's Bay on the 2d and 3d of February, do hereby certify to the entire correctness of the statements contained in letter signed "Truthful Reporter." We are also cognizant that the letter of John Schiller is an unmitigated falsehood from commencement to end.

TORONTO, Feb. 24th, 1871.

We, the undersigned drivers, engaged in the open trot in which Orillia Queen was a contestant, do hereby declare that the statements contained in "Truthful Reporter's" letter are correct throughout, and that Schiller's statements are unmitigated falsehoods.

P. KEARNEY, driver of Aurora Boy.
J. A. JOHNSON, driver of Orillia Queen.
AWAY WEST, driver of Clear Grit.

TORONTO, Feb. 24th, 1871.

We, the undersigned drivers, engaged in the race on Ashbridge's Bay, in which Dusty Miller and Rattler were contestants, do hereby declare that John Schiller's letter in the CLIPPER of the 25th inst. was a tissue of falsehoods from commencement to end.

J. and J. DUNN, VICTOR THOMAS,

CHAS. WENMAN.

TORONTO, Feb. 25th, 1871.

SIR.—I beg to state that my horse, Rattler, who trotted at the late races on Ashbridge's Bay, near Toronto, was never driven better or more entirely to my satisfaction than by C. Gates, and must say I never saw a letter containing such a tissue of misrepresentations as that signed "John Schiller," in CLIPPER of the last issue of the CLIPPER to hand. I am, sir, yours respectfully,

EDWARD BIRD.

TORONTO, C. W., Feb. 24th, 1871.

EDITOR OF THE CLIPPER.—SIR.—The author of the letter signed "Truthful Reporter" has shown me his reply to the epistle of John Schiller, which appears in your last week's issue and which reflects somewhat strongly upon my report of the late races on the ice at Ashbridge's Bay. I can only state that I cordially endorse all "Truthful Reporter" has said upon the subject, and I would remark that Schiller has "much to be thankful for" that, in commenting upon the disgraceful conduct of himself and Nowland, he "let them down" so easily. Respectfully, YOUR CORRESPONDENT.

THE LONG BRANCH RACE COURSE.—Since the Long Branch race meeting last August, great improvements and alterations have been made in the track by the association, under the directing influence of Mr. John Chamberlin. The Course itself has been fresh-graded throughout its entire extent in the most careful manner. Upwards of one thousand trees have been planted in different appropriate places, so as to afford as much shade for the horses in training as possible. New stables are in active progress of erection, and a commodious depot is to be built at the entrance to the course, the line of railroad running close to the gates. Many of the leading stables will train there this spring in preference to the Jerome Park track; indeed, the most experienced trainers pronounce the Long Branch Course superior for this purpose to any track in the north. Col. McDaniels takes his stable down there next week, comprising the great three year old flyer, Harry Bassett, for whom he refused $25,000 last fall; Idaho, 3 years; ch c Hubbard, 2 years, by Planet out of Minnie Mansfield; br f, 3 years, by Australian, dam Lelia; ch f, 2 years, by Julius, dam by Arlington; br f by imp Australian, dam Bonnet (the famous hurdle racer); Oysterman and some others. The stable of Messrs. Babcock and Lorillard, comprising Helmbold, Hamburg, Nellie Ransom, Conductor, Doctor, and two promising three year olds by Jack Malone, will also train here, as will also the stable of Charles Lloyd, which includes Mary Clark, Maggie B. B., Kit Kat, Glen Athol, Bangwoola, Sheet Anchor, and some two year olds by Leamington. It is highly probable that some of the western stables will also, on their arrival north, make the Long Branch Course their training quarters.

A CHEAP.—We learn by advices from Albany, Ga., that the veteran turfman, Major [illegible], of South Carolina, has matched his bay gelding, Corsican, to run against Mr. J. M. Crawford's bay gelding, John Kenrick, for $1,000 a side, mile heats, to take place at Augusta, Ga., on May 31st. When the Major left here, at the close of the racing season last fall, he stated his intention of retiring from training and devoting his attention to breeding. The failure of his cotton crop has caused him to alter his plans, and we shall, doubtless, see him north again this spring. He has turned his famous mare, Nannie Douglas, into a hurdle racer, and threatens to clip the wings of Oysterman, Conolly and Lobelia with her this season over the hurdles. The Major has failed to get on any mains with the southern fanciers this winter—the Waterloo defeats which he gave to the Alabama cockfighter, Dr. Gee, last spring, having, doubtless, deterred any of them from tackling his South Carolina stock again.

NORFOLK will remain at the farm of his owner, Theo. Winters, Solano county, Cal., during the coming season.

THE COMING SPRING MEETING AT NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Our correspondent says:—"For the first time since the war the old Metairie Association will assume the management of the regular meeting on their well known and popular track. Since New Year's they, through their Secretary, W. M. Conner, have spent large sums of money on its improvement. The whole track has been plowed up and several low places filled in, and should the weather be fine during the meeting, which will commence on the 8th of April, and continue for six days, there will no doubt be some of the fastest races ever run in the states made over this track. Mr. Conner has also given much attention to repairs and the building of stables, with a view to the comfort of the animals. Already have several stables arrived, and are busy at work for the events fixed. The association have been extremely liberal in the matter of purses, which will amount to an aggregate of $12,500, and to which all entries are free, with enough money to the second and third horses to make the winning of even those positions go considerable towards paying the expenses of training. Among other well known horses on the track, at work, are Donovan, Kathleen, Alaska, Defender, Sally Farrell, Derringer, Regent, Alice Ward, Hampton, Chickasaw, Chalmette and a four year old bay colt by Star Davis; while among those to arrive during the present week (Feb. 27th) are Corsican, Nanny Douglas, Mozart and Girl of my Heart. The well known Mobile stables will also be on hand prior to the commencement of the meeting."

THE SARATOGA MANAGEMENT.—The racing association at Saratoga has resumed the system of charging five per cent. entrance money to purses at their two meetings this summer. Last year they abandoned it in deference to the generally expressed objections of owners of horses, and were rewarded by large fields of starters. Their present course of management is retrogressive, and although it may gratify a few of the wealthiest owners of horses, who do not like to see large fields of horses starting against them, yet the majority of turfmen will continue to be opposed to the practice, which virtually compels them to pay for the privilege of making the racing sport for the associations, and thus directly promote their pecuniary interests. At Long Branch no charge is made for entering for purses, and this liberal management conduces materially to the popularity of the Monmouth Park Racing Association.

THE ST. LOUIS RACE MEETING.—The turfmen of St. Louis, determined to revive racing in their locality, where, a few years ago, it was so popular and flourishing, but has since died away, have announced a four days' race meeting to commence on Saturday, June 17th. On the first day the Western and Southern Turf Congress Post Stake of four mile heats, $250 entrance, p p, with $1,000 added, will be run; for this there are seven entries. On the second day is a sweepstakes for three year olds, mile heats, and a mile and a half dash for all ages. On the third day there is a mile dash for three year olds and a race of two mile heats for all ages. The sport on the last day is a race of mile heats for all ages, best three in five. The meeting is under the auspices of such turfmen as Cols. J. J. O'Fallon and Chas. McLaren, Hon. Dan. G. Taylor, James Lupe, Esq., and Capt. G. W. Ford.

A TROT for $200 a side, mile heats, 3 in 5, to wagon, came off at Agricultural Park, San Francisco, Cal., on Feb. 11th, between Mr. Price's Peerless and Mr. Brown's Kate; the former won, taking the second, third and fourth heats—best time, 2:56, last heat. An impromptu pacing race, mile and repeat, in harness, followed, the contestants being Mr. Terry's Pruitt, Col. Dickey's McCue, and Mr. Ross' Unknown. The first mentioned won, taking the first and third heats, the second being captured by McCue; time, 2:38½; 2:35½ and 2:37½.

FAST TROTTERS FOR SALE.—In consequence of the recent lamentable death of Mr. James Watson, the County Auditor, his stable of well known fast trotters will be brought to the hammer. Among them is the well known bay gelding, Charley Green, 9 yrs old, who has a record of 2:31¼, has trotted in private in 2:23, and won eight out of fourteen races in public.

THE BOARD OF APPEALS OF THE TROTTING ASSOCIATION.—A special meeting of the Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association will be held at the Hoffman House, in this city, on Thursday, 9th inst., when important business in connection with the trotting turf will be transacted.

THE RING.

THE LATE MATCH FOR THE LIGHT-WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

COLLYER SUES FOR AND RECOVERS HIS MONEY.

REVIEW OF THE MATCH.

As intimated in the CLIPPER last week, the suit instituted by Sam Collyer against the Editor of this journal for the recovery of the stake money deposited by him for his third match with Billy Edwards, and which he forfeited through failure to observe the conditions imposed by the articles of agreement, has terminated in his favor, as all who are conversant with the provisions of the statute against gaming and betting were aware must be the case. We now propose to review the match from its inception, for the purpose of defining the position in which we, as temporary stakeholder, were placed, and that the public may have a clear understanding of the matter. Shortly subsequent to the second fight between Edwards and Collyer, which occurred on the 2d of March, 1870, and in which the latter suffered defeat, Collyer made overtures through our columns for another match with his conqueror, and we were authorized by Collyer to announce that he had a backer who would stake $1,000 for him against Edwards' $600 in a match at catch-weight for the championship, which their previous battle did not include. On July 8th an answer appeared, Billy then putting up a forfeit of $100 and accepting the deal. Collyer was in Missouri at the time, but as soon as he was notified he sent on a century to cover that deposited by Edwards, and as soon as possible came on to this city. The parties met at this office on July 29th, when the following articles of agreement were entered into:—

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT entered into this 29th day of July, 1870, between Billy Edwards and Sam Collyer. The said Billy Edwards and the said Sam Collyer hereby agree to fight a fair stand-up fight according to the new Rules of the Prize Ring, by which the said Billy Edwards and the said Sam Collyer hereby mutually agree to be bound. The said fight shall be for the sum of $1,000 posted by Collyer to $600 posted by Edwards, and shall take place on the 27th day of September, 1870, within fifty miles of St. Louis, Mo. The said Billy Edwards and Sam Collyer to fight at catch-weight for the above sum and the light-weight championship. The men shall be in the ring between the hours of 6 A. M. and 10 A. M., or as near as absent to forfeit the battle money. The expenses of the ropes and stakes shall be borne mutually, share and share alike. In pursuance of this agreement the sum of one hundred dollars a side is now deposited in the hands of Frank Queen. The remaining deposit shall be made as follows:—The second, of $200 a side, on the 6th day of August, 1870, at the office of the NEW YORK CLIPPER; the third, of $100 a side, on the 13th of August; the fourth, of $100 a side, on the 20th of August; the fifth, of $100 on the part of Edwards and $500 on the part of Collyer, on the 27th of August. Each and all of these deposits to be put up at the CLIPPER office not later than 4 o'clock P. M. on the days aforesaid, either party failing to do so to forfeit the amount previously deposited. Each man to choose a referee, who shall agree upon the place of fighting and have charge of the excursion, receiving one-third of the receipts thereof, the balance to go to the winner. A final stakeholder to be chosen at the time of posting the fourth deposit, when the men shall also appoint representatives. The referee to be chosen on the ground. In case of magisterial interference the referee, if appointed, or the stakeholder if not, shall name the next time and place of meeting, if possible on the same day or in the same week, and either party failing to appear at the time and place specified by that official to lose the battle money. The stakes not to be given up unless by mutual consent, or until fairly won or lost by a fight, and due notice shall be given to both parties of the time and place for giving the money up. In pursuance of this agreement we hereunto attach our names.

The several deposits were duly posted until the time arrived for staking the fifth and last, August 27th, we having, up to that time, received $500 from each man. Edwards called at our office an hour prior to the alotted time and placed his $100 in the hands of our representative, but the five hundred from Collyer failed to reach us. In the CLIPPER of the succeeding week we made the following remarks in announcing the fact:—

We regret exceedingly to have to announce that the match recently made between Sam Collyer and Billy Edwards, to fight at catch-weight for $1,600, to in a doubtful state, as Collyer's last deposit of $500 was not placed in our hands in time. Over ten days ago we received a letter from Collyer, in which he stated that all his money had been made up, and that the balance, $500, would be forthcoming at the proper time from the west. Last week he proceeded to St. Louis, reaching there on the 26th, and on the 27th (the day the money was due, at 4 o'clock P. M.,) we received a telegram from him, desiring to know if the money had arrived, to which we replied negatively. A friend of his also received a dispatch the same day, requesting him to call and see if the money had reached us, stating that it had been forwarded. The day passed and it did not come, though Edwards was prompt with his share. On Monday, 29th, $250, half of the amount, came by express from Jack Looney for Collyer, from which we infer that there was a misunderstanding on Looney's part as to the amount called for, or that other parties had promised to send the balance and had failed to do so, or, like him, delayed too long * * * Since the foregoing was written we have been waited upon by a gentleman residing in Brooklyn, who has left with us a check for $500, making up the total amount due, and therefore we think that Edwards will pursue a generous course, seeing that the fault is not attributable to Sam.

On Tuesday morning, August 30th, a telegram was received from Collyer, desiring to know if everything was right. We answered according to the facts of the case, stating that Edwards could claim forfeit if he desired. On the evening of the same day we received another dispatch from him, requesting an early decision, as he wished to commence training. As we could not see Edwards, who was still in training at Cypress Hill Grove, L. I., Harry Hill (supposed to be his principal backer, though several others were interested) was called upon, and, upon stating the case and showing him the telegram, he authorized us to return an answer to Collyer, to the effect that every thing was all right and that Edwards would not take advantage of the failure to put up on time. We accordingly sent a dispatch to Sam, communicating this intelligence. On Thursday afternoon, however, Edwards returned to the city from his training quarters and waited upon us, putting in his claim for the money. While admitting his right thereto, according to the strict ruling of the agreement, we, for reasons which we explained to him, declined to pay over the amount then. On Sept. 3d we received a telegram from Collyer, reading thus:—

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2d, 1870.

I have received your decision and have consulted my lawyer. I shall continue training. It is too late now to give my money away.

SAM COLLYER.

This indicated plainly that he purposed instituting a suit at law for the recovery of the money, should it be given to Edwards; and, as it is our duty to secure ourselves against loss in the matter, we of course declined, in the face of this threat, to deliver the money when the latter again demanded it, unless he took the necessary measures to prevent our being hereafter obliged to refund the amount placed in our hands by Sam. On Sept. 10th we received another telegram from Collyer, stating that he had been in training ever since the reception of the dispatch authorized by Mr. Hill, that he intended to continue work, and that he would meet Edwards nowhere else for a settlement save in a ring near St. Louis. To this we replied that we could not recognize anybody in the match save Edwards and himself, and that Harry Hill was not authorized by Edwards to act as he did in the matter.

On Sept. 13th the required bond was given by Harry Hill, indemnifying us in the sum of $1,000 against any suit that might be entered by Collyer, and the money, $1,100 dollars in all, was handed to Edwards. This we were in duty bound to do, according to the strict wording of the articles by which we, as stakeholder, were alone to be governed, and had it been Edwards who had made default in not appearing at the ring side on the 27th, we should have acted precisely in the same manner. We did all that we honorably could do to induce Billy to allow the match to proceed (even going so far as to send one of our corps, late on the evening of Aug. 26th, to the residence of the president of the bank, in Brooklyn, upon which the check for $500 was drawn, to see that it was all right), but as he did not choose to do so, we gave to him that to which he was unmistakably entitled. We are of the impression, too, that there are precious few professionals in any department of sport who would not have pursued the same course as he did, in case the opportunity offered. To the surprise of those who were acquainted with Collyer, and who from his previous career has been led to look upon him as an honorable, fair-dealing man, he put his threat into execution, entering suit for the recovery of the amount forfeited, in the Supreme Court of Kings County, on the 1st, notice to defend which was served upon us in due course. We sought to induce Collyer to reconsider his determination, advising him in a friendly spirit to withdraw the suit, and pointing out to him the odium which such an unsportsmanlike proceeding would assuredly cast upon him, and which, besides forever blasting his hitherto fair fame in sporting circles, would certainly damage his business interests to an extent far greater than the paltry sum which he sought to recover by such dishonorable means could benefit him. He, however, paid no attention to our counsel, but persisted in the suit against us, and as the Gambling Act, under which he took refuge, left to us no defence whatever, we, after allowing the plaintiff sufficient time to "see the error of his ways," instructed our attorney, J. G. Boyd, Esq., to pay over the amount claimed, with interest and costs, $650.41 in all, which was done on Feb. 24th, and the case was discontinued. Upon being notified of the fact, Harry Hill called upon us, and on the 2d inst. honorably made good his bond by paying over to us the above mentioned sum. We take great pleasure in mentioning this fact, which reflects most creditably upon Mr. Hill—particularly so when contrasted with the conduct of Mr. Collyer—and shows him to be "a true man of his word." To say the least, there are comparatively few persons who would have accepted the situation so gracefully and acted with like promptitude under similar circumstances.

That this ill-advised and thoroughly unsportsmanlike action upon the part of Collyer has cast a stain upon his reputation in the eyes of the fraternity with which he has been identified, is beyond question, and that it will most seriously affect his interests in a business point of view is equally certain, for it has heretofore been his pugilistic celebrity alone that has enabled him to command success, and with the withdrawal of the support of that class his star must surely set, unless he has something else to fall back upon that we have no knowledge of. When a man voluntarily, and with a full understanding of what he is doing, signs his name to a document binding him to do certain things therein plainly defined, or suffer a stated penalty, and who, after failing to live up to the letter of said contract, takes advantage of a legal quibble to avoid paying such penalty, he forfeits all claim to the esteem and good will of all true sporting men, for there is a code of honor recognized by them which will not tolerate such despicable practices.

SETTLING OLD SCORES.

TURN-UP BETWEEN BILLY EDWARDS AND SAM COLLYER.

Sporting circles in the metropolis were thrown into an unusual state of excitement on the afternoon of Wednesday, the 1st inst., occasioned by a turn-up which occurred on that day between those old antagonists and bitter enemies, Billy Edwards and Sam Collyer, at the saloon kept by the former and Harry Hill, Nos. 8 and 10 Centre street. Collyer had arrived in the city from Baltimore a day or two previously, and his object in visiting the place mentioned is said to have been to make a match with his former opponent, Edwards having issued a challenge the day before through our columns, owing to Sam having sued for and recovered the $500 he had forfeited in their previous match. We understand that the latter offered to put up $500 and fight for it in a week's time, which, however, Billy declined to do, stating that he was out of all condition and couldn't become anything like fit to fight in that period. He was ready to do what he had offered in his challenge, no more nor no less, and he thought that ought to be satisfactory, as the terms were very nearly the same as Collyer had previously offered him. Recrimination followed until blows were exchanged, but as we were not present, and as the accounts received from those who say they were are very conflicting in their nature, we have concluded to dismiss the subject by giving extracts of the reports published in the daily papers.

From the World.

Yesterday, about 11.30 o'clock, Collyer, accompanied by his adopted son Daniel, entered Edwards' saloon, in which the champion was behind the bar with his brother. Edwards held out his hand to Collyer, saying, "I am not angry with you." But Sam, for some reason best known to himself, didn't see it. Daniel got off a fearful oath, and then proceeded to abuse Edwards, who thought Collyer's protégé was drunk, and advised the Baltimore pugilist to remove him from the place. Collyer did not do so, but reiterated the expressions of his "Danny," and called Edwards a coward. This was more than Edwards could bear, inasmuch as there were sporting men present, and he came from behind the counter and told Collyer, in plain terms, whatever cowardice was in the affair Collyer had it, in suing for the money he had justly forfeited. Edwards wound up, as he turned on his heel, by saying that unless "Danny" kept quiet he would put him out. As Edwards turned on his heel Sam drew a revolver, and Collyer rushing up behind, struck Edwards a powerful blow on the back of the head, staggering him for a minute. Edwards turned round, and, seeing the pistol, called out for some one to secure it, which was promptly done without any difficulty, and then Edwards threw off his coat and went for Collyer. Collyer got partially behind the stove in the centre of the bar-room. Edwards, his blood coolling, jumped in and planted one of his terrific left-handers on Collyer's left eyepiece, which banged it up effectually and sent Collyer back to figurative Baltimore. Collyer stood half dazed for a second or two, on half guard, and got another left-hander on the jaw, which made the ruby flow and jet out on Edwards' shirt. Collyer then endeavored to force the fighting and throw Edwards. But Edwards beat him at his own game, and kept him off for six rounds, all the time getting in left-handers on Collyer's frontispiece. Availing himself of a convenient cry of "police," Collyer ran out of the saloon, leaving Edwards standing at his bar, breathing well and with a couple of scratches on his face. Collyer went to a barber's shop near by, where he had his head dressed. He had the eye bunged up, was badly cut about the jaw and forehead, and was severely punished. Edwards, with the exception of the knuckles of his left hand, which he cut severely, was uninjured.

From the Star.

An impromptu and most exciting exhibition of the manly was given gratis yesterday morning to about twenty persons, who happened to be present at Billy Edwards' saloon, on Centre street. It appears that Sam Collyer, an old opponent of Edwards', and who one would fancy had received sufficient demonstrations, in times past, of Billy's superiority to make him cautious of how he crossed his track, entered Edwards' saloon about 11.30 A. M., in company with a youngster known as "Dan the Dancer," for the alleged purpose of arranging a match between the two gladiators. Everything went on quietly until "Dan" began to use language which, reflecting upon Edwards' character, Billy requested him to desist, and threatened that, in case he didn't, he would try the virtue of said Dan's physique on the spot. This time about without a moment's warning, caught Edwards a powerful accordoger in the neck, which sent him reeling against the stove. This attack came quite unexpected to Billy, who was standing with his back to Collyer. Recovering himself, however, he made for Collyer, who, seeing that Billy's metal was up, tried to avoid a fight; but Edwards, stung to madness by the blow he had received, was determined to administer a severe punishment, and followed up Collyer to put up his hands. Sam, finding that he must fight, threw himself into attitude, and the fight soon became furious. Edwards, after receiving from a pugilistic standpoint, a little of his antagonist in beautiful style. Seven rounds were fought, occupying about half an hour, at the end of which "Dan," who had been standing by, flourishing a revolver, seeing that Collyer was likely to be made a corpse of, interfered and put off for the police, and returned in a few minutes with one of those gentlemen, and just in time to save his friend from being completely used up by his opponent. Collyer presented a decidedly woe-begone appearance. His face was sadly disfigured, while the blood flowed freely from several ugly wounds on the head. Edwards, with the exception of two ugly marks upon the forehead, the result of a fall, shows no signs of punishment.

From the Sun.

About noon yesterday Sam Collyer entered the saloon kept by Harry Hill and Billy Edwards, at No. 8 Centre street, and began abusing Edwards in the most outrageous manner. He called Bill a coward and many other bad names, upon which the latter ordered the failure to bring on the projected fight. Edwards tried to conciliate Collyer, and finally refused to have any conversation with him, referring him to the CLIPPER for a new challenge, already sent in. Not finding that he could get any money Edwards with his tongue, made a sudden spring and landed his clenched fist on Billy's forehead, thereby bringing blood. Edwards immediately closed with his assailant, and then began a rough and tumble fight in the bar-room, the few remaining loafers only adding fuel to the fire by cheering on the pugilists. The fight scarcely lasted five minutes, but Collyer left the bar-room with a wound in his cheek, a battered forehead, and other marks of Edwards' kind regards. Edwards found his knuckles "skinned" by the encounter, and his face showed the marks of Collyer's fists in a few slight bruises and scratches.

From the Tribune.

Yesterday Collyer entered Edwards' saloon, at No. 8 Centre street, applied to the proprietor a number of foul epithets, and dared him to fight. Edwards told him that he was willing to meet him at any time in the ring, and that a challenge would appear from him (Edwards) in the next issue of the CLIPPER. Some other talk followed, ending with Collyer attacking Edwards. A rough and tumble fight followed, lasting for six or eight minutes, during which each of the men received severe cuts on the head and face. Collyer received the worst of the encounter, and when the doors of the saloon having been closed as soon as the fight began, in order that it should not attract the attention of any one outside.

From the Sun.

Shortly after noon yesterday Sam Collyer, the prize fighter, accompanied by his adopted son Danny and a crowd of roughs, entered Billy Edwards and Harry Hill's saloon in Centre street, and challenged Edwards to fight him for $500 a side within an hour. Edwards, not standing at his bar, breathing well and with a couple of scratches on his face. Collyer went to a barber's shop near by, where he had his head dressed. He had the eye bunged up, was badly cut about the jaw and forehead, and was severely punished. Edwards, with the exception of the knuckles of his left hand, which he cut severely, was uninjured.

From the Herald.

Yesterday, about 11.30 o'clock, Collyer, accompanied by his adopted son Daniel, entered Edwards' saloon, in which the champion was behind the bar with his brother. Edwards held out his hand to Collyer, saying, "I am not angry with you." But Sam, for some reason best known to himself, didn't see it. Daniel got off a fearful oath, and then proceeded to abuse Edwards, who thought Collyer's protégé was drunk, and advised the Baltimore pugilist to remove him from the place. Collyer did not do so, but reiterated the expressions of his "Danny," and called Edwards a coward. This was more than Edwards could bear, inasmuch as there were sporting men present, and he came from behind the counter and told Collyer, in plain terms, whatever cowardice was in the affair Collyer had it, in suing for the money he had justly forfeited. Edwards wound up, as he turned on his heel, by saying that unless "Danny" kept quiet he would put him out. As Edwards turned on his heel Sam drew a revolver, and Collyer rushing up behind, struck Edwards a powerful blow on the back of the head, staggering him for a minute. Edwards turned round, and, seeing the pistol, called out for some one to secure it, which was promptly done without any difficulty, and then Edwards threw off his coat and went for Collyer. Collyer got partially behind the stove in the centre of the bar-room. Edwards, his blood coolling, jumped in and planted one of his terrific left-handers on Collyer's left eyepiece, which banged it up effectually and sent Collyer back to figurative Baltimore. Collyer stood half dazed for a second or two, on half guard, and got another left-hander on the jaw, which made the ruby flow and jet out on Edwards' shirt. Collyer then endeavored to force the fighting and throw Edwards. But Edwards beat him at his own game, and kept him off for six rounds, all the time getting in left-handers on Collyer's frontispiece. Availing himself of a convenient cry of "police," Collyer ran out of the saloon, leaving Edwards standing at his bar, breathing well and with a couple of scratches on his face. Collyer went to a barber's shop near by, where he had his head dressed. He had the eye bunged up, was badly cut about the jaw and forehead, and was severely punished. Edwards, with the exception of the knuckles of his left hand, which he cut severely, was uninjured.

From the Sun.

Shortly after noon yesterday Sam Collyer, the prize fighter, accompanied by his adopted son Danny and a crowd of roughs, entered Billy Edwards and Harry Hill's saloon in Centre street, and challenged Edwards to fight him for $500 a side within an hour. Edwards, not standing at his bar, breathing well and with a couple of scratches on his face. Collyer went to a barber's shop near by, where he had his head dressed. He had the eye bunged up, was badly cut about the jaw and forehead, and was severely punished. Edwards, with the exception of the knuckles of his left hand, which he cut severely, was uninjured.

Introductory Overture.

MONDAY, March 6th, '71.

THAT THE THEATRE, or the "show business," as some professionals delight in calling it, is increasing in popularity every year, needs but a glance at the press of the country to convince the most skeptical. Daily and weekly papers everywhere now find it necessary to give a resume of the movements of professional people and the production of fresh attractions in the way of dramatic, circus, minstrel, variety and miscellaneous entertainments. And to this growing interest in theatricals or show news the NEW YORK CLIPPER may justly lay claim to being the pioneer that opened the way. Before the CLIPPER came into existence, very little interest was manifested in dramatic amusements except in a few of the larger cities, and even then the press had not much to say concerning such matters; and what was said had reference chiefly to the appearance of some new star or the production of a fresh play. The circus, minstrels, or miscellanous amusements were scarcely noticed, and when they were given a brief mention, it was more to ridicule the performers engaged in such entertainments than for any other purpose. "Little people" were not considered worthy of notice in connection with the stars of those days. But all this has been changed by the course adopted by the CLIPPER, and now all entertainments, and every class of performers, are brought into prominence equal with the "legitimate drama" and its exponents. It is particularly gratifying to us to know that so many papers are following in our footsteps, and assisting by their influence the progressive and liberal movement we started years ago, and for which we had to battle single-handed for such a long time. Alone, unaided, we achieved this great triumph; while doing justice to the stars of the period, we brought the "little people" from their lowly estate, proclaimed their merits to the world, and had our reward in seeing them recognized as human beings, instead of the mere chattels as they had formerly been looked upon. We took hold of the circus, and assisted in elevating it to its proper position among our amusements. Managers, finding that their entertainments were no longer viewed as a mere "country show," began making improvements, paying more liberal salaries, and thus bringing to light superior attractions; the result was that better classes of the people began to patronize their entertainments, until the American circus and the members of that profession in this country have attained an exalted position, and even the daily press now find it to their interest to record the movements of that branch of show life. So with minstrelsy, with concerts and variety business—all have made rapid progress since the CLIPPER first put forth its foot-lights, by noticing them from week to week and criticising their performances. Instead of the "show business" being restricted to the principal cities, as in the past, for want of the necessary accommodations in the way of theatres, halls, scenery and other conveniences, traveling companies now lay out campaigns taking in all sections of the country, for every town of note and many villages have their theatres or halls, with everything requisite for dramatic, variety or miscellaneous entertainments. Our readers know that we are not given to egotism, but for this great progress already made in show life, and for its brilliant prospects, we do claim to be the first paper that set the ball in motion. And that managers and performers recognize our claim, and endorse us as the organ of "show business," may be seen by a reference to our advertising columns, where cards can be seen in profusion; cards from proprietors of halls, managers of theatres, scenic artists, manufacturers of theatrical goods, agents, artists in every branch of the profession, and from performers in every line of business. These all come to us voluntarily—we have no special advertising agents like most other papers—the CLIPPER is read by professionals in every quarter of the globe; managers, performers, and all others interested in show business know that they can reach each other through the medium of the CLIPPER, and when they desire to make known their wants their recognized organ, the NEW YORK CLIPPER, supplies the means of communication. Their letters are sent in our care even by professionals and their friends abroad with whom we have no personal acquaintance. The reputation of the CLIPPER as a reliable and responsible journal is widely spread, and its influence and usefulness are increasing with each succeeding volume. We certainly feel a pride in knowing that we have contributed so much towards popularising show people and their interests; and now that the tree has taken such deep root—the tree we planted when the ground was in such a poor condition for the want of necessary culture, but which we have warmed into life and fruition by careful nursing and attention—we welcome the many offshoots that are seconding our exertions by the publication of show news and endorsing our principles by an endeavor to give more attention to the "little people" of the profession as well as to the big. Now that we have prepared the way it is not very difficult for them to follow in our track, and that some of them should even attempt to imitate our style of preparing our record, is a matter of just pride rather than annoyance, as some of our friends imagine it to be. Our items of news are copied almost everywhere, in most cases without credit; but this we do not ask for—the greater publicity given to our show intelligence the better for the profession at large; that is all the credit we require. And so, having had a private talk with our public readers and defined the difference in show life between the past and the present, we drop the curtain on the prologue, and go on with the show, giving our views of the burlesque actress who has of recent years come forward so prominently as a feature in our theatrical representations:—

YE BURLESQUE ACTRESS.

A pair of bright, expressive eyes,
A crown of dazzling hair,
As brilliant as a butterfly
Is ye burlesquer fair;
'Tis she who drives away "dull care"
From childhood, youth and age—
A kind of appetizer, she's
The "Seltzer" of the stage.

She wears a large amount of "cheek,"
A small amount of "togs,"
And in her dashing race for fame
Her "jigs" will prove no "clogs;"
The rules admire the swelling limb
Encased within her hose;
She may not be facetious, yet
She's often bonjocose.

About the "setting of her cap"
She does not care a fig!
She's more particular about
The setting of her wig!
She occupies a "scene in one,"
A song and dance to do;
And if she gets an encore, then
She's often "one to two."

Her dresses they are short, but rich;
Not often so is she,
And though no wondrous genius, yet
Ingenious she must be.
Her mission is to raise a smile,
And if she but succeeds
She may accomplish more than those
Who boast of greater deeds.

.....Our show people, with that single eye thrown out toward coming events for which they are celebrated, having passed the Rubicon of Fourteenth street, managers talk of winding up their leases and making a general begins upward. Haviss got the fever on the brain, and got it bad, too, "Our Jim" left his "Wartegated Sho" at the scene of the latest calamity on the Hudson River Railroad and came to town, prospecting for a site for a grand theatre in the upper part of the city, another man promising to find the capital. James skirmished around Union Square and learned that the Spingler and Union Square hotels had already been taken up for theatres, that the Everett was being turned into a circus and even the Grand Hotel and the Fifth Avenue were in process of transformation for similar purposes. Notwithstanding these, to other people, serious drawbacks, James, not having other people's capital to risk in the venture, at once entered into negotiations for the purchase of Union Park, where he proposes to erect a splendid minstrel hall, leaving the fountain in the middle of the parquet, to play champagne and a variety of other favorite beverages, during the performances, free to all who may desire to quench their thirst while enjoying the diversions of the evening. The building, he says, is to be of white marble, octangular, and the stage is to be in the centre, with six act drops, all to rise at once, discovering the various company arranged in eight platoons, with the interlocutor in the middle. Jim's outlay in the completion of the structure, and the formation of a correspondingly valuable troupe of artists, must necessarily be enormous, but he looks to a confiding public for a patronage commensurate with the magnitude and originality of the design. A private interview with the man who was to furnish the capital has resulted in James quietly going back to the "Wareagated," leaving the proposed colossal structure in a state of statu quo.....And talking about minstrelsy, we respectfully and piously call your attention to the following cheerful rhymes we invented the other night while listening to Mrs. Stansbury's lecture on Woman's Rights:—

ABOUT DANIEL.

Dan Bryant says his troupe is good,
No matter what is thought of it;
He's Neice Seymour and Little Mack,
And that's the long and short of it.

.....And the Germans entered Paris! But that has nothing to do with New York, which the Germans entered long ago, and keep on entering every day in the year, never thinking of evacuating the same as the Prussians evacuated Paris after a brief look at the tranquil city. What we intended to say was to ask, did you ever converse with an actor? He'll tell you that good parts make good actors, while others assert that the converse is true. The following was written "by a young gentleman of this city," his first appearance on any stage, with which solitary bow before the public he was not particularly well pleased; but read what was written

BY THE UTILITY MAN.

A manager, who acts himself,
Is always good, you know;
The reason of his quiet walk:
Because he's "got a show."

.....Where we went to church last Sunday, the pious pastor got out of his regular groove, and went into the sporting line, cautioning his hearers, especially the women, against the insidious wiles of croquet. Now, what harm is there in playing this innocent game of croquet? But never mind, croak-a-way; this, and all other like amusements will flourish in spite of your objections, Mr. Minister Man. We don't think we'll go to that church again. We attend meeting, supposing the bread of life is dea't out there, but in many instances we get nothing but hash, unworthy even of the most disreputable lunch route.....And speaking of eats, why should they never be in want of a meal at Wallacks? Because they've always got a Fisher and a Baker there. And having a Fisher there, it may not be out of place to throw out these LINES.

At Wallack's they will do
A thing that's very funny;
You buy a ticket, and they'll give
You for that ticket "Money."

.....They do say that Fisk, of the Grand Opera House, is so fond of pastry that he always keeps a Patti on hand; that may be, but he must have needed some other kind, or he would not have endeavored to add a leaner Patti to his stock. Let us make

LINES ON JAMES.

Jim Fisk does well, and so he ought,
He's made of the right stuff;
And may he ne'er be made feel blue
Through his great opera buff.

City Summary.

THE RE-APPEARANCE of M'lle Augusta, premiere danseuse; Miss Leo Gordon, serio-comic vocalist; Blanche and George Leopold, aerial gymnasts, and the first appearance at this house of Signor Cassiletti, solo violinist, constituted the fresh attractions of the past week at the Theatre Comique. All of these artists were favorably received. Signor Cassiletti, whose performances we described at length a short time since, upon the occasion of his appearance at Tony Pastor's, has lost none of his wonderful skill. His performances were loudly applauded. M'lle Augusta and M'lle Leah, in the ballet, danced with spirit, and seemed to vie with each other for the favor of the audience, which was liberally bestowed; the support afforded by the truly excellent corps de ballet was excellent. The daring, grace and skill of the Leopolds was much admired. They rank among the first gymnasts of the present time. Miss Leo Gordon sang three songs, with rapid changes of costume, in a pleasing manner. The performers of the regular company appeared in a variety of sketches and acts, which were fresh and well performed. The ballet pantomime entitled "The Adventures of Lord Dundreary," in which the Lauri Family appeared, afforded them full opportunity for the display of those acquirements which have conferred distinction upon their names. It was excellently acted and created much mirth. The entire performance was enjoyable and worthy the reputation of this theatre.

AT NIBLO'S GARDEN the "Black Crook" continues the feature, and no change in its manifold attractions occurred during the past week. Miss Lizzie Kelsey performed Stalacta, as Miss Pauline Markham has not yet recovered from the effects of a late surgical operation. It is said that M'lle Moriacchi, one of the most popular dancers now in America, has been engaged to supply the place of M'lle Bonfanti, when that lady withdraws. The average attendance of the week was good.

"POMP; OR, WAY DOWN SOUTH," continued the attraction at the Bowery Theatre during the past week. Mr. J. C. Campbell, during his two weeks' engagement, has made marked improvement in his acting of Pomp, and as he becomes more accustomed to the manners of the dramatic boards he evinces much latent talent for his chosen profession, which practice will develope. Large audiences were present during the entire past week.

AT THE SAN FRANCISCO MINSTREL HALL, Birch, Wambold, Bernard and Backus, aided by their company, created any quantity of mirth during the past week, in a programme which was materially changed from that of the preceding week. C. Templeton sang a ballad entitled "Meet Me again to-morrow, Bessie," and Wambold revived "Don't be angry with me, Darling." "Let me Be" still holds a place upon the bills; Rollin Howard sang "He's a Private in the Ninth;" Backus and Birch appeared in an act entitled "Sublime and Ridiculous," while a sketch called "School's In" gave the entire company an opportunity to display their varied accomplishments. The present season is rapidly drawing to a close, and this company will soon be convulsing our country cousins with laughter.

MISS CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG, prima donna; M'lle Tedesca, violinist; Mrs. Mixsell, soprano; Gustavus A. Hall, baritone; W. S. Leggatt, tenor, and F. F. Martinez, basso, under the direction of Signor E. Agramonte, sang at a Grand Charity Concert at Steinway Hall on March 3d.

MR. CHARLES WYNDHAM, and several dramatic artists engaged for his company, arrived from England during the past week.

AT BOOTH'S THEATRE, "Richelieu" was withdrawn after the matinee performance of March 4th. It was first produced on Jan. 9th, and consequently received only forty-eight representations, which, considering that the mounting of the play undoubtedly surpassed everything hitherto presented in this country or in Europe, may be set down as a comparative failure, directly attributable to inefficient acting. Mr. Booth erred, we think, in his conception of the character of the Cardinal, and certainly lacked the physique to embody satisfactorily that conception. The balance of the cast was weak with one or two exceptions. This evening, March 6th, "Much Ado About Nothing" will be produced for the first time at this theatre, and Mr. Booth will act Benedict for the first time in New York. It is announced for twelve representations. On Saturday evening last Mr. Lawrence Barrett repeated his excellent performance of King James in the "King of the Commons."

THE FASHIONABLE SEASON at the "Saratoga" to be found at the Fifth Avenue Theatre continues as brilliant and gay as that usually found at its namesake, and bids fair to continue until the real season at the latter place is fairly opened. Why can't Manager Daly perfect an arrangement to supply his visitors with real Congress water from his mimic springs, and thereby induce them to remain in town and save the expense and annoyance of a sojourn at the Springs? For the past week or two Mr. Pierce acted Mr. Cornelius Wethertree, in the place of Mr. Browne, and during a portion of the past week Miss Fanny Davenport was unable to act through sickness, and Miss Linda Dietz played Effie Remington.

AT WOOD'S MUSEUM, during the past week, Mr. E. Eddy continued to act in "Monte Cristo," and attracted good sized audiences. At the usual matinee, on Saturday, Byron's comedy, in three acts, entitled "Dearer than Life" and the farce of "Boots at the Swan" constituted the programme. "Monte Cristo" was withdrawn after the programme of Saturday night, and this evening, March 6th, Mr. E. Eddy will act the leading role in the sensational drama entitled the "Dead Heart," in which he has hitherto won much distinction.

MR. M. DEMPSTER'S fine tenor voice was heard to excellent advantage, at Bryant's Minstrels, in "When You and I were Young, Maggie;" C. W. d'Alberte sang with much taste and effort "Nil Desperandum;" and H. Norman favored the audience with a new ballad, by J. R. Thomas, entitled "Come Again Happy Days." The only novelty in the second part consisted of the revival of "Les Miserables," popularly known as "Old Times Rocks," with Dan Bryant and Neise Seymour in the chief characters; Dan as Hungry Jake was excellent. As a bit of dramatic art his impersonation was a gem. The business of the past week was good. "Coco; or, The Monkey of the Period," continued an attractive feature.

THE "RICHELIEU OF THE PERIOD," like unto the other Richelieus, will soon be a thing of the past, as it is proposed on March 13th to produce at the Olympic Theatre an entirely original play from the pen of Augustin Daly, said to be entitled "Horizon," for which a full dramatic company is now being engaged. Mr. G. L. Fox will remain and act in the play, and it is said that J. K. Mortimer and Miss Agnes Ethel have already been secured. We sincerely trust that the drama may once more find a home in this handsome temple. When you once get a theatre out of the regular groove, so to speak, and it becomes comparatively tabooed by the regular dramatic patrons, it is uphill work to win them back again. The genial and courteous Mr. John H. Selwyn, who has assumed the control of the front of the house, has given his valuable experience to the stage department as well, and, judging from his successful efforts in a sister city, the former patrons of the drama of this theatre may be brought back again. In addition to the artists above named, the following have been engaged to act in "Horizon:"—J. B. Studley, A. D. Bradley, J. B. Polk, H. Teesdale, F. Chapman, Cheries Wheatleigh, Mrs. J. J. Prior, Miss Ada Harland, Mrs. and Miss Yeamans.

THE STEVENS SISTERS, dancers, were the only fresh faces that appeared during the past week at Tony Pastor's Opera House. They took part in the female minstrel scene which commenced the performance, and sang a duet—"My Poor Heart is Sad with its Dreaming"—in so pleasing a manner that the audience demanded its repetition. They have clear, sweet voices, not remarkable for strength, however. In the olio they appeared in a characteristic duet, with banjo and guitar accompaniment, which met with favor. Miss Kitty O'Neil, who had hitherto appeared only as a jig dancer, performed a song and dance entitled "Where Flowers Blush and Bloom." As she was laboring under an attack of hoarseness and was somewhat nervous, she did not reach that point of excellence that was desirable; yet we doubt not, with a little more practice she will succeed. She was tastefully costumed and her face and figure were seen to advantage. A new comic sketch entitled the "Fast Girl's Frolic," concluded the entertainment.

MISS LAURA KEENE closed her engagement at Lina Edwin's Theatre, with the performance of Mary Leigh, in "Hunted Down," on Saturday night last. During her engagement she succeeded in attracting to this theatre good sized audiences. Owing to a prior engagement made with W. Horace Lingard, for the appearance of his company of artists this evening, March 6th, Miss Keene was compelled to withdraw in the midst of her success.

JOHN BROUGHAM'S COMEDY entitled "Romance and Reality" was presented at Wallack's Theatre, on Thursday evening, March 2d, for the first time in five years, and was acted with the following cast:—

Otter Wanly.....M. Lanagan	Williams.....J. Peck
Asper Manly.....John Gilbert	Rosabel.....Mrs. Thos. Barry
Frank Meredith...Owen Marlowe	Barbara Manly..Miss E. Mestayer
Lavender Kydd...S. T. Ringgold	Blossom.....Miss Effie Germon
Jack Swift.....John Brougham	Betty.....Miss McCormack
Tom Badger.....J. C. Williamson

Notwithstanding the improbability of its plot, it is highly amusing, and the dialogue is crisp and sparkling. The action and interest never flag for a moment from the rise of the curtain till its final descent. John Brougham found in Jack Swift one of those peculiar characters which seemed specially adapted to his mercuriality of temperament. His impersonation was full of life and vivacity, which imparted itself to the surrounding characters, and permeated the audience until the fullest sympathy between actor and spectator was thoroughly established. In the fourth act, where he assumes the disguise of a rough Irish laborer, it became almost impossible to discover any trace of the genteel, dashing and reckless Jack Swift, so complete was the metamorphosis of costume, appearance and language. M. Lanagan and John Gilbert as the two brothers were both excellent, the former portraying the calm, mild nature of the character with care and fidelity, while the latter in the impulsive, irascible, violent yet good-hearted man found a character eminently fitted for the display of his sterling artistic talent. Owen Marlowe was effective as Frank Meredith, and in those portions which afforded an opportunity for burlesque melo-dramatic acting, he displayed qualifications we were hitherto ignorant that he possessed. Lavender Kydd, the languid swell just returned from continental travel, found in Mr. Ringgold a clever exponent. It was costumed and acted with care. J. C. Williamson's acting of the English tiger, Tom Badger, was pronounced. He created much mirth during the evening. Mr. Peck in the minor character of Williams, a servant, was painstaking. Mrs. Thomas Barry as Rosabel, a romantic young lady, who scorns the realities of life, appeared to much advantage. It is a difficult character to act, as it borders so closely upon burlesque that the line of demarkation had to be drawn with the greatest care to make the performance successful; in this, however, the lady succeeded, and in consequence her performance was very enjoyable. Miss Emily Mestayer as Barbara Manly, a strong minded woman of mature years, wearing a semi-masculine garb and carrying the inevitable umbrella, achieved a great artistic success, and its performance told immensely with the audience. Miss Effie Germon had in Blossom one of those congenial soubrette characters the clever performance of which has added distinction to her name, and her acting on this proved no exception to that rule. While in the disguise of the Irish servant girl, in the fourth act, her acting was inimitable. Miss McCormack deserves creditable mention for the care she bestowed upon the very short part of Betty. The epilogue spoken by all the characters, which had probably in part been rewritten, was pungent, well delivered and had sufficient interest to stay the usual exodus from the auditorium immediately preceding the close of the comedy. A very large audience was in attendance on Saturday evening and could be progressed at a quarter to eight o'clock, and the lobbies were filled with triple rows of spectators. The comedy was repeated on Saturday evening. "Money" was repeated on Monday, Feb. 27th; "Ours" on Tuesday; "A Morning Call" and "Woodcock's Little Game" on Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee; "Home" and "Blue Devils" on Friday. Miss Clara Jennings has been added to the stock company of this theatre, and will shortly make her rentree.

AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE benefits have been the order of the past week, which occurred as follows:—That of M. Anthony on Monday, when the "Brigands" was performed; M. Girrebeuk on Tuesday, "La Perichole;" M. Hittemans on Wednesday, "Barbe Bleue;" M. Variet on Thursday, "La Perichole." On Friday evening and Saturday matinee the "Grand Duchess," and Saturday evening "La Perichole," were performed. This evening, March 6th, "Les Georgiennes" will be performed for the first time in America. Among the incidental attractions will be a female drum corps and an Amazonian march. On Sunday evening, March 5th, a full dress rehearsal of this opera was given, in the presence of a large number of invited guests, at the Grand Opera House. The music, which is very pleasing, is of a higher order than any we have hitherto heard from the pen of this author, and some portions of it are very intricate and difficult of execution. In the first act the chorus, 'Appelons les femmes" was beautifully rendered, and M'lle Persini's soprano solo by her charming singing of some couplets, commencing "Ah! vraiment." The chorus of the maimed, "Apres une guerre," was conspicuous for its harmony, and would have received several encores had they not been prohibited. A drinking song, sung by M'lle Aimee, with chorus, near the close of the second act, will, undoubtedly, become very popular. It was not the one set down in the libretto, however, but was interpolated. It afforded M'lle Aimee an admirable opportunity to display the full powers of her voice, and at its close a burst of applause, such as is seldom heard in a theatre, rewarded her efforts. At the close of this act the female drum corps appeared, and won considerable applause for their skill and precision in time. The Amazonian march, by a number of young ladies, was a noteworthy feature. They were reviewed by General Fresco—M'lle Aimee—mounted upon a horse, which she managed with considerable tact. The third and final act is very brief. The chorus sung by the male portion of the cast, disguised as female gipsies, was very ludicrous. The opera is well mounted and costumed, and contains all the elements of success, and the libretto is singularly free from any improper allusions. The tableau at the rising of the curtain on the third act, which consists of a bivouac of the female warriors, was very beautiful. The time of representation was about three hours. A HIGH SPECIALTY at Tony Pastor's Opera House this week, in the person of Col. Routh Goshen, the same being eight feet in height.

THERE SHOULD be a strong turn out at Lina Edwin's Theatre this week to see Mr. Lingard in his impersonation of King William of Prussia. They say that he "makes up" very well for the victorious Wilhelm.

MESSRS. BUTLER & GILMORE, of the Theatre Comique, are to come into possession of the Union Square Hotel property on the 1st of May, and the alterations will be commenced at once. It is certainly a grand location for a theatre.

THE RIZARELLI BROTHERS are still to be seen in their gymnastic performances in the "Black Crook" at Niblo's Garden.

MADAME SERRACH'S engagement at the Stadt Theatre, in the Bowery, terminates with the current week; she is to appear in Mosental's drama of "Isabella Orsini," for the first time in America.

WHEN NILSSON holds forth again in this city, it is to be hoped that she will give us a better orchestra than she had during her first series of concerts here. As a curiosity, the "lovely Swede" has had her day. We now look for

DON'T FORGET that the wonderful Leopolds are to be seen at the Theatre Comique.

A GOOD MANY ENGAGEMENTS for our theatres for next season are being made by some of the papers of which our managers know nothing.

"BAD WHISKEY" is on the bills of the Globe Theatre, but we do not learn that the people take to it. They get bad whiskey enough at other places.

DOCTOR JAMES L. THAYER and wife are in the city, stopping at the St. Charles Hotel. Report has it that the genial Doctor will have a first class show on the road this season. He is an enterprising showman, and it seems that the more he "goes under" the more he rises from the situation.

MUCH CONCERN is felt among showmen for the safety of the steamer Erie, now long overdue at this port. She has on board a collection of valuable animals for the Barnum show.

ANDY HAIGHT, of Wooten & Haight's New York Circus, now organizing at Atlanta, Ga., is in this city this week, securing a canvas and looking after printing matter.

AT MISS KREBS' CONCERT on the afternoon of the 4th inst., at Steinway Hall, Miss Agnes Palmer, recently from Italy, where she had been to finish her musical studies, made her first appearance as a songstress, and demonstrated that she had a full and forcible mezzo-soprano voice, which, however, is susceptible of being better controlled.

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY'S fourth concert was given at the Academy of Music on the evening of the 4th inst., under the leadership of Carl Bergmann. Miss Kellogg's Boi Razzio, by Rossini, was the charm of the concert.

THE OLD TIME EQUESTRIAN afterpiece, "Billy Button," apparently gave as much satisfaction to the audiences at the New York Circus during the past week as it did to us ever so many years ago, when we donned our first trowsers and high boots. The trained horses and ponies evinced a great instinct and the juvenile portion of the audience were in raptures. Master George Donald continues his equestrian feats; Mlle. Jeanette Elister performed wonderful evolutions upon the tight rope; the corps of leapers were in the best condition and the performances attracted good houses during the week. On Tuesday evening, about half past eight, a fire broke out in a livery stable in immediate contiguity to the circus, which would have seriously damaged that edifice had it not fortunately been constructed of corrugated iron. The audience assembled manifested no disposition to leave until a policeman appeared in the ring and stated that there was danger in longer remaining in the building. As an instance of kind feeling it may be mentioned that Mr. Lester Wallack offered Mr. Lent the services of all his attaches, if required, to assist in removing the properties and equipments. The damage sustained by Mr. Lent was slight, not exceeding $50. For the present week there will be no change in the programme.

MR. ROBERT STEVENS, who has been successfully piloting Miss Laura Keene up to the close of her engagement at Lina Edwin's Theatre, has been retained to attend to the business affairs of that establishment. As he is a gentleman of ability and possessed of great suavity of manners we presume that he will be the right man in the right place.

MESSRS. CUNNINGHAM & DOW, dramatic agents, 636 Broadway, have several advertisements in another column, to which we refer managers or others who may have business with the following artists:—Laura Keene, Jeanie Benson, cloggist; Col. Routh Goshen, the Arabian giant comedian; John C. Campbell, comedian; E. T. Stetson, tragedian; Hernandes Foster, pantomimist; or the Union Brothers, acrobats and pantomimists. Particulars of stars, plays, etc., may be found in their various cards.

W. H. WHALLEY has given up his engagement at Buffalo, N. Y., and returned to this city.

WILLIAM WARREN, the favorite comedian; R. M. Field, manager of the Boston Museum; and Arthur Cheeney, proprietor of the Globe Theatre, all of Boston, Mass., were in town during the past week.

L. R. SHEWELL has been engaged to play the leading characters with Mlle. Janauschek during her star engagements up to the time of his commencing to act at Niblo's Garden.

COL. T. A. BROWN, dramatic agent, 718 and 720 Broadway, is prepared to negotiate engagements for Collins and Oakes, song and dance men, and for W. C. Crosbie, comedian, etc. He also has a customer for a panorama. See advertisements.

MANAGER R. DORSAY OGDEN arrived in town during the past week, from Charleston, S. C., to which city he will probably return if he can secure first class attraction.

MANAGER AUGUSTIN DALY renewed his lease of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, during the past week, for two years. He is now selecting the most popular actors for his next season. In addition to Messrs. Lemoyne and Griffiths, of Boston, Mass., it is said that he has engaged Owen Fawcett, at present playing at Aiken's Museum, Chicago, Ill., Louis James, now playing in Philadelphia, Pa., at the Arch Street Theatre, and Miss Mary Cary, from the Globe, Boston.

MONS. D. CHECHNI, ballet master, states through an advertisement that he has made arrangements with Col. T. A. Brown to practice in his rooms, and that he is ready to prepare pupils for the stage.

JUDGE BRADY has decided that, inasmuch as the German halls and gardens in the Bowery "have provided stages, orchestras, drop curtains and side scenes, and have introduced farces and charged the public an admission fee," they rank as theatres and must take out license accordingly, which will probably lessen the number of such places of resort.

A BILL WAS INTRODUCED in the legislature on March 2d, by W. M. Tweed, "incorporating the New York Advertising Company, who shall have the privilege to erect columns upon which to post bills, and pay five per cent of the net earnings to the city."

THE JOSIE BOOTH DRAMATIC COMBINATION disbanded at Jacksonville, Ill., on Feb. 10th, concerning which our correspondent "Iago" writes as follows on Feb. 24th:—"Their last piece was the 'French Spy,' in the rendering of which Mr. O. H. Barr, the leading man of the company, and Miss Booth enacted a scene not on the bills. Mr. Barr, who was playing the part of Mohammed, was slightly 'indisposed,' and, during the sword combat with Miss Booth made several mistakes, when Miss Booth became enraged and struck Barr across the face with her sword, and told him he was not half a man. She then drew her dagger and started towards Barr, when Wm. Marble (Miss Booth's husband), ran out on the stage and pushed Barr off, and picking up his wife, ran off on the other side. The curtain went down and the party disbanded. Barr was seriously injured, but at last accounts he was improving rapidly."

THE NEW GALVESTON THEATRE, Galveston, Texas, was dedicated to the drama and opened for its first regular season on Saturday evening, Feb. 25th, and though we have a bill of the opening and the papers containing a review of the opening performance, no description whatever is given of this entirely new edifice. The opening bill consisted of the overture to "The Bronze Horse," by the orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. Richard Maddern, with the following performers:—J. Charlton, W. Maddern, C. Surbone, J. Beard, Leeberman, A. Peterson and A. Simon, which was followed by the recitation of a poem written by the late Mr. George D. Prentice, of Louisville, Ky., by Miss Augusta L. Dargon, following which Sheridan's comedy of the "School for Scandal" was acted, with the following cast:—

Sir Peter Teazle.....E. A. Eberle	Careless.....J. A. Burns
Sir Oliver Surface.....T. J. Hind	Snake.....G. Gilbert
Joseph Surface.....Frank Evans	Lady Teazle...Miss L. L. Dargon
Charles [illegible].....Davenport	Maria.....Miss F. McClellan
Crabtree.....Vining	Lady Sneerwell..Mrs. M. C. Daly
Sir Benjamin Back-bite.....Joseph Gobay	Mrs. Candour..Mrs. R. A. Eberle
Moses.....M. C. Daly	Servant to Lady Sneerwell.....Miss Annie Tyson
Trip.....Geo. Jordan, Jr.	Servant to [illegible].....Miss Kate Tyson
Rowley.....O. B. Mortimer	Sir Sur[illegible]

The performance concluded with the musical burletta of "Jenny Lind," in which Miss Emma Cline appeared in the title role. The above cast embraces the entire company, with the exception of Miss Mattie Maddern. The managers and officers are Messrs. Greenwall Brothers and Prince, lessees; Vining Bowers, stage manager; G. A. Mortimer, assistant stage manager; J. P. McCall, properties; Acker and McCall, stage carpenters, and R. E. Stanley, scenic artist.

CHARLES T. PARSLOE and his pupil, Master Saima, will perform six nights at Harrington's Opera House, Providence, R. I., commencing March 27th, when they will appear in an original local drama which has been written expressly for them by H. A. Weaver, entitled "Flashes of City Life; or, Providence in Three Glimpses." They will have the support of a good stock company, and the play will be mounted with scenery painted expressly for the purpose.

DE BAR'S OPERA HOUSE, St. Louis, Mo., can be rented from May 29th until August 19th. Apply as per advertisement.

THE THEATRE ROYAL, Montreal, may be rented by the night or week on application to J. W. Buckland, as per advertisement.

THE LAWRENCE COMBINATION, including Miss Lucy Adams, an accomplished serio comic vocalist, prove to be very attractive cards with their moving statuary and comic pantomime, as is proven by the fact that they have been engaged for a second time by Manager Fox, of Philadelphia, for four weeks, to commence March 20th. They are at liberty, however, to negotiate with other managers for engagements after April 17th. Propositions may be addressed to James Lawrence as per advertisement.

THE CONDITION OF THE DRAMA IN BUFFALO, N. Y., is made manifest in the following letter from our correspondent, "Typo," dated definitively that he had left the Boston Theatre to assume the stage management of the Olympic, New York. For a week it was quite surprising to see his name announced as stage manager both of the Boston and the Olympic—places so far apart.....The Howard Athenæum has added to its list of attractions J. H. Milburn, the great London comique, who is said to rival Lingard; John G. Levantine and the Earle Brothers; Signor Columbus, the contortionist, and Kate Williams. The burlesque and harlequinade, 'Sinbad the Sailor,' in which Adah Richmond is very pretty, and Maffit and Bartholomew are very funny, is continued, as also the Female Minstrels. Olivia Rand comes next week, with the burlesque of 'Kenilworth,' and other good things are to be produced."

OUR GLEN'S FALLS, N. Y., CORRESPONDENT gives the news from that village as follows:—"Opening on Monday, the 27th ult., the stock company of the Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y., were in occupation of Cosgrove House, Hotel for three nights, playing on Monday and Wednesday to bad business, while on Tuesday night they gave no performance, owing to the slim audience at the hour for commencing. They gave, the two evenings they did play, 'Dora,' and 'Under the Gaslight.' The only member of the company who really created a favorable impression was Geo. C. Davenport. The failure of this company here was partially owing to the bad weather.....On Thursday night, Washburn's Lost Sensation played the final engagement of their season at Cosgrove's Opera House, to a fine audience. On Friday, this company shipped horses, sleighs and trappings to Herkimer, to which place the company soon followed to reorganize for the summer season, commencing May 1st."

DRAMATIC AFFAIRS IN PITTSBURGH, PA., are thus commented upon by our correspondent, "J. E. H.," under date of March 3d:—"The Zavistowski Sisters are the stellar attractions at the Pittsburgh Opera House this week. They made their first appearance on the 27th ult. in the 'Ticket of Leave Man,' to a well filled auditorium. The sisters are sprightly, captivating actresses, and their impersonations on this occasion were creditably rendered. The burlesque of 'Little Don Giovanni' was presented on the 28th. The sisters played their parts well and their songs and dances were encored. 'Little Don Giovanni' was re-produced on the 1st inst. A new drama, written by Fred. E. Maeder, entitled 'Found on a Door Step,' was presented on the 2d, with all the sisters in the cast. The audience was not as large as the performance merited. The extravaganza of 'Pocahontas' will be given on the 3d for the benefit of the sisters, concluding with the 'French Spy.' Mr. Stuart Robson appears on the 6th inst. as the star.....Ida Vernon, recently leading lady at the Pittsburgh Opera House, has resigned in consequence of ill health.....Manager Bentner has introduced to the patrons of the Fifth Avenue Opera House, on the 27th ult., a first class variety combination. The programme offered was unusually attractive and the performance was one of the most enjoyable of the kind ever witnessed in this city. The entertainment commenced with the comic drama of 'Love's Disguises,' which was followed by vocal selections by Jennie Smith. Then the Walhalla Troupe gave gymnastic exercises. Pankhurst and Collins appeared in songs and dances. 'La Zingarella,' by the Zavistowski Sisters, was then neatly given, which was followed by Little Vic in her character songs. This little girl is a prodigy. She acts and sings with remarkable proficiency. The Rigi Sisters, Betty and Emily, then appeared in 'Poses of Grace.' Their dancing drew from the audience the most positive encomiums. Professor Schmidt and his pupils were next in order. The Schmidt troupe introduced their sensational divertissement, which was one of the most pleasing features of the programme. Larry Tooley's songs were encored four or five times. Dan Morris' Irish songs and dances met with favor. As an Irish vocalist this gentleman is very clever. The farce of 'Sweet Repose' and then given, which was followed by Pankhurst and Collins in a statue clog dance. Miss Bowen's strait act was next on the bill, and the entertainment concluded with a display of prismatic fountains, in three tableaux. The effect was very fine, and the audience heartily applauded the efforts of Prof. Schmidt. The programme has been changed nine times during the week, and business was remunerative. The Worrell Sisters open for one week on March 13th."

AMUSEMENTS IN San Francisco, Cal., are thus commented upon by our correspondent, "Sir Toby," writing under date of Feb. 25th:—"Excepting on Moriacchi's farewell benefit the performances this week at the California Theatre were without novelty and call for no especial remark. There were brilliant ballets, glimpses of saturnine life and volcanic eruptions in 'Masaniello' and there were brilliant ballets, florid romance and splendid scenery in 'Monte Cristo.' Between these famous productions has been produced, for the second time, as Moriacchi's benefit on the 24th, the 'French Spy' and the last two acts of 'Monte Cristo' were performed. A large audience was present and the occasion, from frequent floral pettings and applause that greeted her every movement, one of pleasure to the beneficiary. Miss Fannie B. Price will commence a short engagement on Monday, Feb. 27th, by appearing in the title role of 'Panchon.'.....At Maguire's Opera House the Emerson Band to-night close one of the most successful seasons of minstrelsy ever played in San Francisco. Novelty and really good talent has built them a reputation here only to be compared to what the Birch and Backus' Troupe once enjoyed. Billy Emerson had a crammed house for his benefit, 24th, when his physical powers were severely tested by frequent, not to say senseless, demands upon him to repeat songs and dances. On Monday, Feb. 27th, the Gaiete Troupe, of which Evelyn Forrest is the principal lady, will make their first appearance. The combination is reported to be of unusual strength, which appears to be justified by the following list of names:—The Sylvester Troupe, whose entertainment is called twenty minutes in Fairy Land; Eugene Romelli, Marie Romelli and Cecile Romelli, trapeze performers; Martha Wren and Jas. Collins, protean artists; the Hernandez Burlesque Troupe; Angelique Schott, soubrette; Harry Leighton; Charles Howard, the celebrated delineator of the plantation negro; Mlle. Marie Gaugain, premiers danseuse, from Fisk's Opera House; Mlle. Marie Kurtz, Mlle. Lawrence, Mlle. Langlois, Mlle. Young, danseuses, and a full company of coryphees. The season opens with Maguire and Emerson as proprietors; Sheridan Corbyn, business manager; Dowling Kavanagh, treasurer; Frank Lanagher, stage manager.....About the 15th of March the Metropolitan Theatre will open with Smeechnia's French Opera Bouffe Company, which is expected to arrive here in the course of a week or two from Peru. Mlle. Geraldine, Mlle. Emilie Baserre, Mlle. Parent, Mme. Leroyer, Mlle. Maniga, Mlle. Cleusman and Messrs. Leroyer, Bouvard, Darcy, Jules, Alexis, Hombert, Noe, Cott, Bernard and Van Dyck are the principal artists.....The Alhambra Theatre will be re-opened on Feb. 27th by Emerson's Minstrels, whose season will continue indefinitely. Maguire and Emerson are proprietors; Silas R. Briste is business manager; Ainsley Scott is stage manager.....Charley Hall, pianist, lately arrived from Australia, gave a musical reception at the Occidental Hotel, 20th, before an assembly of musicians, critics and fashionables. He is a brilliant but soulless performer. His first public concert takes place at Mercantile Library Hall on Feb. 27th. .....Fred. Lyster and wife (Minnie Walton) arrived overland, 20th. Mr. Lyster comes as manager for a bouffe troupe, formed of the principal singers of Offenbach's Fisk's Opera House. It was intended to play the company in a few weeks at the California, but learning of the approaching season at the Metropolitan, Mr. Lyster has postponed the advent of his troupe until the fall. Among the principal artists are M'lles Aimee, Persini and Thal; Messrs. Gausins, Hittemans and Walther.....The Hyer Sisters (colored), have been giving concerts with indifferent success at Platt's Hall.....Mrs. Van Dyke Hubbard, who has for some time past been studying for the stage, under the teachings of John McCullough and Sedley Smith, will shortly make her debut at the California Theatre, in the play of 'The Wife.'.....Manager Piper left for Virginia city last Tuesday morning, with the following artists:—McKee Rankin, Kitty Blanchard and W. H. Powers, as the star attractions; Wm. Barry, Harry Sinclair, Harry Colton, Geo. Hinckley, Chas. Thornton, Miss Maggie Moore, Mrs. Harry Sinclair, Miss Alicia Mandeville and others, will constitute the company."

THEATRICAL AFFAIRS IN SACRAMENTO, CAL., are reported as follows by our correspondent, writing on Feb. 26th:—"Miss Rose Evans, the young Australian actress, who has just concluded a successful engagement at the California Theatre, San Francisco, made her first appearance at the Metropolitan, under the management of Josh Proctor, last Monday night, in the character of Juliet, in 'Romeo and Juliet.' The little lady met with a all the reception, and to say the least she is deserving of by the Englishe and encomiums bestowed on her efforts lady is petite in stature and San Francisco press. The ented. Her readings, very handsome, young and talcion clear and distinct. Acts and forcible. Her emancipatiomasterpiece of acting, and impersonation of Juliet is a the Juliet of Shakespeare's creasems the beau ideal of Evans appeared as Parthenia in '. On Tuesday, Miss by Mr. Proctor in the title role, and her supported and ample scope for the display of her a the lady Wednesday night, 'Court and Stage' was produ. On which Miss Evans enacted the character of Nell Gwynn On Thursday night she appeared as Hamlet, a character which she had ces yed on two or three occasions, but which, to my thinking, does not add much to her reputation, as it is not so well adapted to her physique; she reads the part well, and acts the character splendidly, but the contrast with the other performers is at times so strikingly noticeable that it borders somewhat on the ridiculous. Friday, Miss Evans appeared as Lady Audley, in which she achieved great success, and for the matinee this afternoon 'Romeo and Juliet' is announced. The engagement of Miss Evans will close next week, when she will appear in a number of novelties.....The Carandini Opera and Ballet Troupe were the recipients of a grand complimentary benefit Friday night, which was largely attended. The members of this troupe are prudent, and the programme presented was one of great excellence. .....Moriacchi, the great dancer, is to open at the Metropolitan Theatre on March 6th."

HARRY LINDLEY, low comedian, character and burlesque actor, and Florence Webster, leading lady, can be engaged through Col. T. A. Brown.

CONCERNING THE ELOPEMENT OF MISS NELLIE GERMON, the Cambridge City (Ind.) Tribune publishes the following account:—"Tuesday afternoon a dispatch was received in Richmond, from Piqua, to have Nellie Germon, the actress of Robert Johnson's troupe, arrested. She was aboard the train from that city in company with a Mr. Brown, of the same troupe. Upon her arrival she was taken in charge by a police officer and detained until 12 o'clock that night, when Mr. Johnson arrived. In the meantime, however, Mr. Brown had procured a license, and the two were married before Mayor Bennett. Johnson claimed that Nellie was lawfully wedded to him about three years ago, but she disclaimed any such connection. Johnson seemed to be considerably wounded over the occurrence. He returned to Piqua and the young couple took the train for Indianapolis."

JOHNNY ALLEN will act in his new play at the Opera House, Newark, N. J., March 27th and 28th.

THE "Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock" was performed under the management of the author, Capt. G. W. Stevenson, in East Saginaw, Mich., during the week ending March 4th, and was announced to be performed in Bay City the present week.

CONCERNING THEATRICALS IN INDIANAPOLIS, IND., our correspondent, "Vagrantes," writes as follows under date of March 3d:—"The Academy of Music was well attended on Feb. 24th, the performance being the 'Middy Ashore' and 'La Somnambula,' in which pieces Miss Lisa Weber and Mr. George F. Ketchum created roars of laughter. On Saturday a matinee was given, 'Ernani' being the attraction. Mr. G. F. Ketchum was rapturously applauded for his rendering of the old Castilian. Jaga and Silva were mirthfully amalgamated by Mr. James Vincent, and 'Ernani' was played with true burlesque spirit by Miss Weber. The troupe concluded their engagement on Saturday evening, Feb. 28th, with 'Lurline.' A full house greeted them. The troupe were to appear at Evansville, Vincennes and Terre Haute, during the week ending March 4th.....Miss Kate Fisher has appeared during this (last) week in 'Mazeppa' and the 'French Spy,' and is billed to appear in 'Jack Sheppard.' Miss Fisher's performance of Mazeppa is one which reminds us most forcibly of the grace and daring of the late Miss Ada Isaacs Menken, and in the 'French Spy' she evinced a talent for melodrama well appreciated by the playgoers of this city. Before the drama each evening a farce was performed by the stock company of the academy, and between the pieces Mlle. Geraldine thrilled the audience by her trapeze act entitled 'A Leap for Life.' Excellent audiences have attended during the last two weeks.....Murphy calls for 'Help' at the Academy on March 6th.

THE CONDITION OF THE DRAMA IN ALBANY, N. Y., is made manifest in the following letter from "Mercutio," dated March 4th:—"Oliver Doud Byron, at the Trimble Opera House, has drawn very good houses this week. With the exception of one of two additions the play 'Across the Continent' remains about the same as when last produced here. Mr. Byron as the hero, Joe Ferris, has improved, if possible, since his last visit to us. On Friday evening, among the 'supers,' we recognized Mr. Walter Montgomery. It was a good joke and appreciated by the audience, or rather those who recognized him. On Monday, 6th, Mrs. Scott Siddons, Mr. Walter Montgomery and Jem Mace open in 'As You Like It,' with Mrs. Siddons as Rosalind, Mr. Montgomery as Orlando and Mace as Charles the wrestler.....At the Academy of Music, Mrs. D. P. Bowers opened on the 27th of Feb. as Julia in the 'Hunchback,' and Geo. Ryer as Master Walter. On the 1st, 'Hunted Down; or, the Two Lives of Mary Leigh,' was produced, in conjunction with the farce of 'Jenny Lind.' On March 2d the grand complimentary benefit, tendered Manager Lawler by the Legislature, Common Council of Albany, representatives of the New York press, citizens of Albany and the attaches of the Academy of Music, took place at Martin Hall (a new hall just opened). There was crowded in the hall one of the most enthusiastic audiences ever assembled to witness a theatrical performance. The opening piece was 'Lady of Lyons.' Mrs. D. P. Bowers, as Pauline, gave a faithful portrayal of that character. The Claude Melnotte of Mr. Lawlor was excellent. His first entrance was a signal for an outburst of applause, which lasted some seconds. Geo. Ryer as Col. Damas, J. V. Little as Monsa. Beausejant, C. H. Edwin as Mons. Glavis, G. W. Johnson as Mons. Deschappelles, Miss Osborne as Widow Melnotte and Mrs. Farren as Mad. Deschappelles, were all up in their parts, and were all recipients of rounds of applause. At the end of the fifth act Mr. Lawlor was called before the curtain and responded in a few appropriate remarks. Mr. Ryer was also called out and he made one of his odd speeches; after which Mr. Gus Phillips (Ou-ty Geo.) recited 'Schneider's Ride,' an encore, 'De Fire in Ritt shdreed,' which was hugely enjoyed by the audience. The 'Exile' and 'Let All Obey' was sung by Mr. Lombard in an excellent manner. The amusing comedy of 'More Blunders than One' concluded the performance, with Mr. Joseph Murphy as Larry Hoolegan, in which he sang 'Paddy's Wedding' and 'The Groves of Blarney,' and executed an Irish jig, assisted by Mrs. Murphy. Everything passed off smoothly, although they had but a short time to prepare the hall for a performance. Great praise is due Mr. John Meaher, stage carpenter, and Mr. Brooker, scenic artist. The receipts of this night were over $2,000. On the 3d Mrs. Bowers' benefit took place at the Academy of Music, which was very well attended. 'The Lady of Lyons' was the attraction. This afternoon and evening was set apart for the benefit of Fred G. Maeder, author of ——ship,' which piece was acted on that occasion. Mr. Maeder as Tracy Randall gave an acceptable performance of that character, although he appeared a little nervous. Mr. Joseph Murphy has improved wonderfully since I last saw him. His dances and jigs in excellent style. The song so'o which is, without an exception, the best I ever heard. 'He'p' has been rewritten by Mr. Maeder, and in the afternoon and evening the attendance was good. On the 6th Hernandez Foster's Pantomime Company open at this house in the new pantomime, 'See Saw.' In which Hernandez Foster as Clown, Joseph Sloan as Pantaloon, Frank Foster as Harlequin and Nelly Wood as Columbine. During their stay Manager Lawlor takes his company traveling, with Mrs. Lander as the star."

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, Cleveland, O., the Florences closed their successful engagement on the 25th ult., and departed for St. Louis. Our correspondent "Claude," writing on March 3d, says:—"On the 27th the sensational drama 'After Dark' was produced to a larger house than the first night of a new piece usually draws in this place. John Elsler played Old Tom in an excellent and painstaking manner and was successful, as he generally is in everything he undertakes. Bella Golden, as Eliza, was good, as was the Dicey Morris of Mr. Wallace; Sid. Smith played Bellingham very nicely, and Barrett and O'Neil as Sir George and Chumley were all that could be desired. Miss Effie Elsler made an elegant Rose Edgerton, in both makes and acting the piece has been put on the stage with unusual care and attention, and the several artists deserve credit for their share of the work. Mr. Moesta got up some fine sets, of which Black Friars' Bridge and the Thames by Moonlight, the Dry Arches and the Lilacs—country scene of Sir George—are particularly noticeable, the latter set being elegant. Messrs. Healy and Eastman were as successful in their department of the stage, the entire piece working smoothly from the opening. 'After Dark' is entitled and will undoubtedly receive, a long and profitable run, if one may judge from appearances thus far during the week."

AMUSEMENTS IN CHICAGO, ILL., are thus written about by our correspondent, under date of March 2d:—"McVicker's Theatre is doing a heavy business the current week, with Mr. Charles Fechter as the star attraction. So much has been said of this gentleman's acting by the eastern press, that there was a morbid curiosity on the part of our theatre goers to witness and judge for themselves of his merits as an actor, as, in other cities, there seems to be a vast difference in opinion on the part of the press and public relative thereto. Having seen him in Claude Melnotte, Ruy Blas and Hamlet, we can but pronounce him a consummate artist so far as acting is concerned, but considerable of an irritation as an exponent of our mother tongue. He is very awkward in appearance, his delivery is unpleasant, but it must be acknowledged that his acting is life-like and natural. He opened in 'Lady of Lyons' and received a very cordial reception. Miss Leclercq's Pauline was in every respect an undoubted success. In fact, the character has never, to our recollection, been more faithfully portrayed in Chicago. Frank Roche's Beauseant, and Charles Leclercq's Damas were well rendered. The entire company were most excellent in their several characters. Tuesday night 'Ruy Blas' was enacted and 'Hamlet' last evening attracted the largest audience of the week. 'Den Cæsar De Bazan' to-night. Mr. Fechter's engagement extends this week only, and then we are to have Miss Lizzette Bernard for one week, followed by Joe Murphy.....Joseph Wheelock is slowly recovering, and will soon re-appear. Manager Fisher, after playing two weeks to good business at Allen's Globe Theatre, was succeeded on Monday evening last by the charming little actress, 'Little Nell, the California Diamond.' She opened in 'Katy Did,' to a light house, which was wholly owing to the strong counter attraction at McVicker's and Farwell Hall. Little Nell is young in years, and, taking into consideration the short time she has been before the public, she is entitled to much credit for the really meritorious manner in which she renders the five distinct characters in the above play. She is a remarkable singer, does a neat dance, picks the banjo cleverly and performs on the violin in good style. The support by the company is creditable. Mr. Barry's Jerry Boe is especially noticeable. Mr. Pardey's Doctor Fee is also a fine piece of acting. 'Katy Did' is announced until further notice. Business has picked up since the first night, and will no doubt continue good throughout the week. Robert McWade succeeds Little Nell next week. .....The week opened at Allen's Museum with 'The Last Kiss' and 'Paw and Haw,' Burton's Troupe in good house. The pieces were capitally played and gave much satisfaction. On Tuesday evening the same bill. Manager Aiken was tendered a complimentary benefit by the Museum company, attaches and the press, on Wednesday afternoon and evening. The testimonial was a complete success in every particular. The attendance was very large upon each occasion, and the plays, 'Romeo and Juliet' and 'The Duke's Motto' were creditably enacted by the entire company. Mr. Aiken was called before the curtain at the conclusion of the last act of the latter play, made a neat speech, thanking the company and the press for the testimonial and was about to retire, when he was confronted by Mr. Keller, who intimated that he had a few words to say. Instantly the curtain rolled up and disclosed the whole company arrayed upon the stage. He was then presented with a gentleman's cabinet set. Prof. Stevens also presented him a rich gold chain. Altogether it was a brilliant affair. Madame Sanyeah commences a three nights' engagement to-night. Next week E. T. Stetson brings out 'Neck and Neck.'"

WILSON & CLARK'S Dramatic Company are to close their present season in Fredericton, N. B., March 11th, and go thence to Woodstock.

J. F. SHERRY'S NEW YORK THEATRE company played three nights in Williamsport, Pa., commencing March 2d.

IRENE WORRELL'S BURLESQUE TROUPE is billed to play three nights in Williamsport, Pa., commencing March 6th.

T. J. HERNDON'S DRAMATIC COMPANY closed their second week's performances in Syracuse, N. Y., on March 4th.

WHITMORE'S BURLESQUE AND PANTOMIME COMPANY performed in Taunton, Mass., March 6th.

MISS JENNIE WILLMORE and a dramatic company are announced to play in Taunton, Mass., March 10th and 11th.

DEW. THOMPSON commenced a week's engagement at the Royal Lyceum, Toronto, Ont., Feb. 27th.

THE LISA WEBER BURLESQUE TROUPE has changed the dates of performing in Springfield, Ill., to March 20th, 21st and 22d.

KEAN BUCHANAN commences a brief season at the Theatre, Savannah, Ga., March 6th.

JOHN A. ——— and a dramatic company are announced to play "Trash" in New Haven, Conn., March 6th and 7th.

ROBERT BUTLER, the pantomimist, was married in Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27th, to Miss Annie McDonald, of Boston, Mass. Among the guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, and Mr. and Mrs. Shappee, of circus fame.

THE WALLACE SISTERS' BURLESQUE TROUPE are announced to perform in Titusville, Pa., from March 13th to the 18th, inclusive.

ROBERT BUTLER, clown, comedian and pantomimist, is at present performing at the National Theatre, Cincinnati, O., where he can be addressed.

JOHN E. OWENS is announced to play, under the management of C. W. Tayleure, in Bridgeport, Conn., March 10th.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS relating to engagements at the Globe Theatre, Boston, Mass., must be addressed to W. R. Floyd, as per Mr. Cheney's card in another column.

Musical.

A. MORGAN, a second violin and E flat alto horn player, may be engaged as per address in advertisement.

THE ALLEGHANIANS, vocalists, and Swiss Bell Ringers, are now on their eastern tour from the west. They are to open at the Logansport, Ind., Opera House, March 10-11, for three concerts, thence to Peru, Toledo, Cleveland, Pittsburgh to New York. During their tour west they have concertized in fifty-one churches, twenty-two society halls, fifteen opera houses, three dining-rooms, two corn cribs and one malt-room of a lager beer brewery. It is an undeniable fact, says a correspondent, that wherever the Alleghanians are led by that indefatigable Waldron, they meet with uninterrupted success.

ARTISTS desiring engagements for the season of '71 and '72 with the Appy Concert Company are requested to address as per advertisement.

J. L. HAMMS states, through a card elsewhere, that he is prepared to furnish a band of reliable musicians for the coming tenting season.

AT THE FRENCH OPERA in New Orleans, La., "Lucia di Lammermoor," with Lefrane as Edgar, was repeated Feb. 23d. At the matinee on the 25th, "La Favorita," and in the evening, a "Songe d'une Nuit d'Ete" was repeated. On Sunday, the 26th, Lefranc sang Manrico in "Il Trovatore;" on the 27th, "Faust" was repeated. "L'Etoile du Nord" is in preparation and will probably be produced on March 6th, for the benefit of the conductor, Mr. Calabresi.

THE PEAK FAMILY OF SWISS BELL RINGERS commenced a traveling season in Niles, Mich., on March 1st, thence to Kalamazoo and 4th.

ADELAIDE PHILLIPS and her concert company sang in Kalamazoo, Mich., March 1st; Grand Rapids, 2d.

HOWE'S MUSICAL MONTHLY, No. 16, contains a large collection of dance music and songs, all for 35 cents. Howe's cheap.

THE ENGLISH OPERA COMBINATION, under the management of C. D. Hess, gave three evening performances and a matinee at Bro'ard's Hall, Cleveland, O., commencing on March 2d. They have been greeted with fair houses and have given entire satisfaction. "Marriage of Figaro," "Fidelio," "Martha," and "Der Freischutz," were the operas selected.

THE BERGER FAMILY of Swiss Bell Ringers are to perform in Troy, N. Y., on March 8th.

THE CONTINENTAL VOCALISTS sang in the Main street Opera House, Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 28th.

THE BROOKLYN CHORAL UNION CONCERT of March 2d crowded the Brooklyn Academy of Music to its utmost extent, the immense gathering of fashionables overflowing into the amphitheatre. The star of the evening was Clara Louise Kellogg, who looked charmingly and sang in a style which brought down the house, a double encore being insisted upon. The programme of the concert included Mendelssohn's "Athalie," which was finely rendered by the four hundred singers of the Choral Union, and the "Inflammatus," from the Stabat Mater, sang by Miss Kellogg with great expression. John Chart, the famous basso, also elicited hearty encores for the song from the "Creation." Harvey Dodworth led the orchestra of fifty performers.

THE WONDERFUL CHILD-VIOLINIST, Americus, gave a series of concerts on the evenings of February 27th, 28th and March 1st, at Concert Hall, Philadelphia, when a well arranged programme was rendered, with the assistance of Signora Roselle, M'lle Freida De Gebele, Mr. Albert Lawrence and other artists. Mr. Leonard Grover, the manager of this combination, intended and had even advertised that he would give concerts on the evening of the 2d, and a matinee on the 4th inst., at the same place, but owing to some unexplained cause they were not given. Lack of patronage was not the reason, as the hall was crowded on the evenings above mentioned.

THE GERMAN OPERA TROUPE made their re-appearance in Philadelphia at the Academy of Music on the evening of the 3d inst., appearing in Halevy's beautiful opera of the "Jewess." The attendance was rather small, the inclement weather and the fact of its being Lent combining to keep away many who would otherwise have been present. The Cardinal of Adolph Franosch was a good dramatic performance, and his singing was very creditable; but the great feature of the opera was the singing and acting of Madame Louise Lichtmay, who sustained the character of Rachel, and executed the difficult music allotted to her in an irreproachable manner. Flotow's opera of "Stradella" was produced on the 4th inst., at the only performance—a matinee—with Theodore Habelman in his great character of Barbariano. The operas of "William Tell," "Faust," "Tannhauser," "The Magic Flute," "Fra Diavolo," "The Huguenots" and "Il Trovatore" will be produced during this—the last week of the season.

THE THEODORE THOMAS troupe, with Miss Anna Mehlig, is to give concerts at Pike's Music Hall, Cincinnati, on the 8th, 9th and 10th of March.

A FIRST CLASS CLARIONET PLAYER is advertised for in another column by H. F. Dunspaugh.

NILSSON is announced to sing in Washington at Lincoln Hall on the 10th and 11th. Reserved seats——

Variety Halls.

MISS AGNES SUTHERLAND, who has been seriously ill in Cleveland, O., during the past week, has now been pronounced out of danger, and is rapidly recovering.

AT THE MAMMOTH HALL VARIETIES, Mobile, Ala., the chief attraction consists of Billy Kirby, stilt dancer; Sandy Dolan, Ethiopean and Dutch comedian; Dan Ryan, clog dancer; Carrie Weston, dancer; Minnie Pell, vocalist, and Kate Williams, dancer.

E. D. LANGLEY has recently opened a music hall in Houston, Texas, with George Maddern as the stage manager. The company is small, numbering only some six performers, among whom are M'lle Zoe, trapezist; Tom Hall, who does Lingard sketches, and Miss Andrews.

AT THE BALTIMORE, MD., OPERA HOUSE the Howard Sisters, Nellie and Jessie, made their first appearance last week in their jigs and songs. Among the other performers were M'lle Fayre, in sentimental melody; Belle Graham, danseuse; Kate Barrown in a Spanish medley; Johnny Brassel, song and dancist; Frank Howe, vocalist, and Tony Harvey in negro melodies.

MISS ADDIE SPRAGUE, vocalist; Mons. Arizona and Master George, double trapeze, were the fresh attractions at the Academy of Music, Grand Rapids, Mich., during the week ending March 4th.

DICK CARROLL and Nick Warren, end men, comedians, clowns, &c., advertise that they can be engaged.

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Petersburg, Va., Sam. R. Orme, who has been stage manager since the hall was opened, closed his engagement on March 4th. He will be succeeded by Frank Gayton, and Ed. Loughlin goes on the end. M'lle Carolista, a performer on the corde volante; Little Sharpe, vocalist, and Bettie de Long, statuary, are billed to appear March 6th. The season will close about the middle of April and the company will then travel under canvas.

ARTISTS are wanted for the Walnut Street Theatre, Kansas City, Mo., which is said to be doing a good business. For further particulars see advertisement.

ARTISTS AND MUSICIANS are wanted for a variety troupe. Address Gilmore, care of this office.

THE OLYMPIC VARIETIES, New Orleans, La., did an excellent business all through the latter part of the carnival, particularly so since the introduction of the Can-can, which is now nightly danced by the full company, consisting of M'lle Lotta, Jennie Wilton, Lulu Cullum, Lillie Wilton, Flora Weston, Annie Gibbons, Lotta Warren, Maggie Loraine, Charley White, George Sisson, Billy Diamond and John Carroll. Previous to the Can-can a very good olio performance is given, in which Billy Diamond gives a very clever comic bone solo, and Miss Gibbons and John Carroll a trial clog dance. So writes our correspondent "Crescent.".....The St. Nicholas Theatre has once more thrown its doors open to the public, and is receiving its full share of patronage. It has quite a good company, who appear nightly in a first part as the female minstrels, while during the second, Annie Dubois, Jimmy O'Bryan, Annie Barbier, Master Eddie Gibbons, Inna Dubois, Dora Crompton and Charley Fisher appear in various amusing specialties, the evening's entertainment concluding with an Ethiopian extravaganza entitled "Who's The Chamption; or, The Light Fantastic."

NO NEW additions were made to the company at the Metropolitan Hall, Washington, D. C., during the past week, but a good bill was offered, and the attendance throughout the week was quite large. Shay and McIntyre remain on the ends in the female minstrel scene, and Mr. Porter, the stage manager, holds his own as interrogator. The contortion act performed by Maggie and Minnie Clare has been taken off the bill, but Miss Maggie appears in a posturing act, and it is a prominent feature of the entertainment. Miss Lizzie Steadman has already become a favorite. She is prepossessing in appearance, dresses with taste, and is a very graceful dancer. Minnie Grey and Nelly Edwards sing a duet together very nicely, and they also appear in various acts and farces. Rosa Lee concluded her engagement on the 4th instant. Her position in the company will be filled by Lucy Adams. On the 6th instant, the Lawrence Troupe of statuary artists are expected to appear. Mr. B. Henze, the manager of the establishment, was married on Washington's birthday to Miss Jennie De Mars. Mr. Porter contemplates an early visit to New York, for the purpose of joining the Benevolent Order of Elks, and during his absence, Mr. Dick Clark will probably act in the capacity of stage manager.

THE PHILADELPHIA VARIETIES, Tenth and Callowhill streets, Philadelphia, was crowded nightly during the past week and the efforts of the management were abundantly rewarded. During the few weeks that Mr. J. M. Mortimer—whose name is well known in connection with the variety business—has had possession of the old circus building, the changes effected have been so extensive that it gives a good idea of the energy with which he is prepared to carry out this new undertaking. Mr. Mortimer has a very fair company and will add to it whenever he can obtain that class of talent which he seeks to place on his stage. The programme last week embraced many attractive features, the most prominent of which were the performances of the Female Minstrels; duets by the Freeman Sisters, who appear to have reached the height of popularity, being nightly encored five or six times; Miss Viola Clifton's protean vocalism, which was pronounced the ballet ("La Sylphide") serves to introduce M'le. Venturoli, who, by her graceful and pleasing style of dancing, quickly established herself as a favorite with the audiences at this theatre. In addition to the ballet there were acrobatism by Creste and Leduc, vocalism by Miss Emma Alford, a great favorite here, and Mr. Sidney Franks, whilst the "negro element" was ably sustained by Lew. Brimmer, Matt. Wheeler, Billy Barry and Geo. Thatcher. The entertainments concluded with a new local drama entitled "Philadelphia as it Was and Is," in which Mr. H. W. Williams sustains the character of a detective with considerable ability. An entire change of programme is announced for the present week, the principal stars being Professor Jester, "The Man with the Talking Hand;" Miss Amy De Brent, serio-comic vocalist, and Miss Stewart in songs and dances.

CINCINNATI VARIETY INTELLIGENCE up to the 3d is given by our correspondent, as follows:—"At the Race Street Varieties the new ones this week were the Jerome Family and Miss Maria Coleman, jiggist. The latter young lady is evidently still a tyro in the profession and needs considerable perfecting, her steps being few and crude. The Jeromes consist of Miss Pattie, a very good danseuse, and Master Harry and Johnny, who do a good double clog. Signor Frances this week is doing the comfortable feat of impaling a man to a board with knives, which he performs very successfully. He also juggles knives, fire-balls, etc., very cleverly. Harry Wilkinson, banjoist, closes with the present week, and on Monday Charley Sullivan, an excellent Dutch, Irish and Ethiopian comedian, with Master Hall & Gaylord's, will open here. Johnny Weaver and Carrie Lee, late of this company, went to Terre Haute this week, accompanied by May Weaver and Harry Raynor, late middle man at the Winter Garden.....John Ryan, the former proprietor of the Alhambra, took a benefit last night at the Apollo Hall, a German variety hall. The performers now playing over the Rhine participated, including Tim Woodruff, Ned Reed, Mina Griffin, Johnny Nichols, J. P. Jackson, Emma Barrett, Mollie St. Martins and others. Mr. Ryan entered a suit to-day against Keziah Emery in the Superior Court for $9,300, claiming that he had been damaged that much by being ousted from the Alhambra, now Globe Theatre, which he had erected on ground belonging to Emery, having, as he claims, a lease of the same. The Globe still remains closed. There are several reports about new parties taking it.....Johnny Foster, song and dance man, has been sick in this city for several weeks, and is just getting about again."

IN PITTSBURGH, at the Varieties, writes our correspondent, "J. E. H." on the 3d inst., "the principal feature has been the Female Minstrel Troupe, composed of the Misses Lucy Adams, Augusta Lameraux, Lillian Howard, Malinda Nagle, Mollie Kane, Little Prestage and Mlle. Lawrence. The four end men consist of Welch and Rice, bones; and Dick Parker and Geo. W. Herman, tambourine. Miss Lameraux acts as interlocutor and does her part well. The entire performance is a brilliant success in the manner in which the troupe is presented being novel and interesting. The scene concludes with a national tableaux of Washington, illuminated with colored lights and a patriotic chorus being sung by the company. Matthews and Hunting, gymnasts, made their first bow a few nights since and have proved themselves expert performers in their line. Indeed, they are among the best we have had in Pittsburgh this season. Sam. Ryan, an excellent Irish comedian, put in an appearance on the 27th ult. A very good show has been given during the week and the patronage has been commensurate. The people leaving next week will be Welch and Rice and Lillian Howard. The new comers next (this) week will be Prince Sadi D'Jalma, Wm. Carlton, Jennie Gilmer, Hanigan and Hart, double clog and dance men; Bertha Rupert, Mons. Creste and Mons. Leduc, French wrestlers; the infant Speight prodigy and J. W. Ward. Sam. Ryan, Sam. Long, Dick Parker, Geo. W. Herman, Matthews and Hunting, Miss Lameraux, Miss Nagle and Miss Prestage continue next (this) week."

LITTLE ROSALIE MARRETTA, one of the Marretta Sisters gymnasts, while performing at the Walnut Street Theatre, Kansas City, Mo., on Feb. 28th, met with an accident which came near proving fatal. While performing on the high trapeze, hanging by her feet, head downwards, from the swinging bar, in attempting to raise herself up again her feet slipped from the bar, and she fell with a heavy "thud" to the floor of the theatre. An exclamation of horror went forth from the audience and a rush was made to raise the prostrate child. She was carried behind the scenes and medical aid sent for. It was found on examination that little Rosalie had escaped, as by a miracle, any serious injuries; when, a few minutes afterwards, the child passed out with tearful face and bandaged arm, the audience gave vent to their sympathy and admiration by a hearty peal of applause.

AT THE THEATRE COMIQUE, Cleveland, O., Kathleen O'Neil, Ida Morton, La Petite Pauline, a very smart child, Geo. Knight and Frank Wood were the fresh faces that appeared on Feb. 27th.

JAKE BERRY, character vocalist and comedian, can be addressed as per advertisement.

THE WALNUT STREET THEATRE, Kansas City, continues to draw well. "The Idiot Witness" and the great sensational drama, "Peep O' Day," were the last put on the stage, with Miss Eloise B. Erwin, Miss Fuller, O. W. Blake, Frank Frayne and others in the cast. The recitation of "Seamus O'Brien," by Trad. Warner, was very pleasing. Clara Butler's singing and Mlle. Zoe's dancing are features in the performance. Quinn, Rogers and Wilson afford merriment in their numerous negro sketches. The female gymasts, the Maretta Sisters, do a very daring performance on the trapeze. The banjoist and comedian, J. W. Bertley, and Miss Millie Frances, have been engaged. So writes our correspondent "Chaco."

MISS EMMA WHITING, serio-comic vocalist, and William Gray, song and dance performer, were the fresh faces that appeared at the Theatre Comique, Detroit, Mich., during the past week.

MISS LIZZIE SHERMAN and Harry Watson, character songs and dance and pantomime performers, were the chief features at Wild's Varieties, Syracuse, N. Y., during the past week. Among the other artists were Emilie and Fred. Siegel, dancers; Pessley and Fitzgerald, Ethiopian comedians; Nicolo Norton, juggler; Jennie McMillan, jig dancer; Tillie Antonio, dancer; Johnny Jennings, song and dance; the Harrison Sisters, dancers; Harry Stanwood, banjo, and Charles Wolters, song and dance. Mlle. Turnour, *trap

The Distin Cornet is superior to any before the public.
J. HARLOW, N. Y.
I am delighted with the Cornet. The tone is far superior to any other; it blows easier, and in fact I would not change it for any Cornet I have ever seen, and that is the opinion of all who have tried it. JOHN M. STOCKTON.
Jan. 9, 1870. Leader Stockton's Cornet Band, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
The instrument is the finest I have ever had in my hands. I am much pleased with it. LEWIS J. DAY, Green Bay, Wis.
HARTFORD, CONN, Sept. 19th, 1870.
GENTLEMEN.—The set of instruments received by our band from your house have, after a severe and thorough trial of three months, exceeded our most sanguine expectations. We knew that they would be good, but we have found them to be superb; and that is the universal verdict of musicians and all others who have heard them. They are remarkable for the PURITY AND SINGING QUALITY of their tones, and for possessing great resonant power, entirely devoid of harshness. We have never been able, on instruments that we have previously used, to so easily and completely master the extremes of Piano and Forte and the Crescendo.
The testimony of individual members of the band is, that after a long and arduous engagement, they feel much less fatigued than when they were using other instruments.
THE ELEGANT AND THOROUGH WORKMANSHIP exhibited in each and every instrument demands especial notice. They are models of SHAPE, STRENGTH AND DURABILITY.
The PATENT LIGHT VALVES are all that the most flattering testimonials from other sources have represented.
Among individual instruments particularly noticed by persons outside the band, may be mentioned the monster Champion Bass and Tenor Cors. The former is noticed for its smooth round tone, combined with immense power. The Tenor Cors were an experiment, but they have greatly exceeded what, from a catalogue description, we had been led to expect of them. They unite the qualities of the French Horn and Saxhorn; and from their great flexibility, they make an excellent substitute for the former instrument in orchestra (with the advantage of having the Saxhorn fingering); while in the brass band their tone, combined with the Trombones, gives to the middle instruments a quality rarely equaled in any bands in this country. Not the least desirable quality noticed by persons who listen to these instruments (the set), is their sounding in perfect tune in all keys. I do not think they can be excelled in temperament or tone.
Finally, each instrument is a model of its kind, and the combined effect of the whole all that could be desired.
Yours respectfully,
P. G. GODDARD, Leader Colt's Armory Band.
